POPE ASSERTS SPANISH RIOTS ARE SACRILEGE

Big Responsibility Exists for Church Burnings, Pilgrims Are Told.

HEAVENLY JUSTICE WITH MERCY ASKED

Alfonso, 45, Fails of Attention on Birthday for First Time in Spain.

Vatican City, May 17 (A.P.).—In the first public declaration he has made on conditions resulting from the recent riots in Spain, Pope Pius XI today described the burning of religious houses as "sacrileges against God and holy religion." A heavy responsibility exists, he said, for the violence committed.

The Pope addressed a group of Spanish pilgrims headed by the Auxiliary Bishop of Valencia, who came to Rome to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the labor encyclical of Pope Leo XIII.

"What can we tell you," the Pope said, "at such a distance, with such uncertainty regarding news? We are sorry to say, however, that there is a certainty of many unhappy and sorrowful things.

Responsibility Held Great.

"It is certain also that there is a very great responsibility on those who have caused these unhappy things and on those who have done these unhappy things. Very great also is the responsibility of those who allowed these things to take place and have not hindered them.

"Certainly conditions in Spain already were too much compromised and menaced by many evils without need that there be added these violences, these sacrileges against God and the holy religion."

The Pope added a message of mercy:

"We pray God," he said, "that He will reply with His justice to these provocations, but that he will be merciful. In the meantime, returning to your country, say that the Pope prays for Spain as you also pray for Spain. The pastors pray, your clergy prays, and so also do the faithful there."

Future Lies in Hands of God.

Everything is in the hands of God, the Pope added, and the hope for the future lies with God.

"The hand of God is always ready," he said, "and from one moment to another can show itself and change everything. We have, therefore, faith that we are in the hands of God because nothing better could be hoped for. It is with these sentiments that we give you that benediction which you have come to ask even in these sad days.

"We hope these beautiful banners of yours, under which you have struggled so gloriously, will return to shine with their ancient glory after so much harm done to religion and to your country.

"The benefit of religion is a fact of supreme value to a country and, even if there are other benefits of importance and worthy of interest, there is none with more profound interest and importance, both for country and for religion."

All Are Blessed.

In conclusion, the Pope again told the pilgrims to tell their countrymen he was praying for Spain. After expressing his affection, he blessed all those present.

Madrid, May 17 (A.P.).—Alfonso, for the first time since he was born a king 45 years ago, received no attention in Spain on his birthday today.

In contrast to previous elaborate ceremonies on May 17, the country quietly passed over the birthday. Even monarchists and close friends of the king made no public display. A few of them met secretly in private homes and drank toasts to the absent former king.

Country Is Tranquil.

Unlike last Sunday, when the first serious riots under the republic started, today was a normal Sunday throughout the country. Most of the people devoted themselves to bullfights, horse races, football and theaters or remained at home.

One of the outstanding week-end political developments was the agreement of Socialists and Republicans to continue their coalition for the June assembly elections.

Several newspapers printed reports that all Jesuits are leaving the country. There was no official confirmation and some members of the order said the only Jesuits who had gone

SYNOPSIS.

Little Jane Ward goes to tea at Andre's house and meets his English mother and French father, who is a consul. Her schoolmates, Flora and Muriel, make fun of her little French playfellow, but Agnes, her chum, understands. Andre is studying to become an artist and asks Jane to help him stage a puppet play of "Camille" which he had seen Sarah Bernhardt play in Paris. He gives Jane the book to take home and read and asks her to dance the Halloween cotillion with him. Jane is thrilled.

CHAPTER II.

JANE had no time to read "La Dame aux Camellias" that night.

Her home work was very long. She looked it over, translating a line here and there, hoping in vain for pictures, before she went to bed. She left it on her table next morning when she started out for school.

She told Agnes about the play at recess and Agnes was very much thrilled. She took special pains with her French that morning and learned one extra irregular verb. She hoped it would appear in "Camille," in one of its most unusual tenses. She decided, quite firmly, to work hard on the grammar that winter and really learn to speak the language. Perhaps when she and Andre had done Camille he might ask her to do Phedre, too. She talked about that possibility very seriously with Agnes after school. So long and so seriously that she was just a little late in getting home for luncheon.

Her mother and Isabel were already seated at the dining room table. The homely odor of fried ham greeted her nostrils as soon as she entered the room. She flung her books on a chair. She was pleasantly hungry.

"Gosh, I had fun in school today," she said.

Then she noticed that something was wrong. She would have noticed

9 SLAIN, 30 INJURED IN EGYPTIAN RIOTING

Troops Fire on Election Mob at Mitgamr, Killing Six; Ballots Stolen.

Cairo, Egypt, May 17 (A.P.).—Nine persons were killed and 30 wounded in election disturbances during the week-end.

The most serious disorder was a fight last night between troops and rioters at Mitgamr in lower Egypt after the beating to death of a subcommandant of police. The soldiers fired into the crowd, killing six persons and wounding 23.

One British subject was killed in Cairo and one of two rioters injured in the Saida Zeinab quarters yesterday died later. Police fired into a group of demonstrators there after the unruly crowd had started throwing stones.

Other disturbances were reported today, including the derailment of a passenger train near Damanhour. This caused no casualties.

Ballot boxes were stolen in various provincial districts.

The clashes were due to tension existing between the government of Premier Sidky Pasha and a coalition of Wafdists (Nationalists) and Liberals.

The Wafdists and Liberals instituted a vigorous campaign to boycott the elections, refusing to recognize the revised electoral system under which they are being held.

Prior to last June when the Wafdists held office the constitution provided for election of members to the chamber by direct universal suffrage. When Sidky took office he introduced the present indirect system under which the country votes for delegates who then elect the actual members of Parliament.

It is the election of delegates which now is proceeding. The delegates are scheduled to choose members of Parliament June 1.

7 Persons Killed In Crossing Crash

Five of Victims of Tragedy in Iowa Members of Same Family.

Calamus, Iowa, May 17 (A.P.).—Seven persons, five girls and two young men, were killed here today when their automobile was struck by a train at a crossing.

Five of the dead were members of the Berner family. They were Martha Berner, 20; Medona, 19; Bernadette, 16; Monica, 15, and Arnold, 13. The other two victims, Mildred Mumford, 18, and Walter Mumford, 17, the driver of the car, were cousins of the Berners. They were from Dewitt, Iowa.

GOLDSBOROUGH HITS HULL'S TARIFF PLEA

Byrns Enters Row to Blame Hawley-Smoot Act in Foreign Trade Drop.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Goldborough (Republican), Maryland, and Representative Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, clashed yesterday in the Capital's latest tariff controversy.

The Marylander ridiculed a proposal of Senator Hull (Democrat), Tennessee, that the flexible provision be repealed as a "threat of another general tariff revision." Byrns, ranking Democrat on the House appropriations committee, blamed the Hawley-Smoot act for a large part of the decline in American foreign trade.

Mr. Hull, a former chairman of the Democratic national committee, predicted his party would wage its campaign next year on the economy issue, saying:

"If the Democrats will accept the call to leadership in the political and economic crisis facing the Nation today they will be kept in power for a generation at least."

Senator Goldsborough contended the Democrats helped create the present law, casting 526 vote for rate increases.

"On two occasions," he added, "the Democrats who now howl so

14 Japanese Dead In Mystery Blaze

180 Hurt, 30 Seriously, When Trapped in Fired Film Theater.

Tokyo, May 17 (A.P.).—A mysterious series of fires which recently have caused much loss of life and property damage continued during the week-end with four more outbreaks in different parts of the country.

Fourteen persons were burned to death and 180 injured, 30 of them seriously, when they were trapped in a blazing motion picture theater in the town of Kanekemachi, in the prefecture of Gumma. When the fire started 800 persons, most of them women and children, stampeded for the exits. Many were crushed in the frantic rush and others were left to perish in the flames.

At Niigata 70 houses were burned today. Twenty-one firemen were injured when their fire engine skidded into the river. Six hundred homes at Akita on the northwest coast of Nonshiu were reduced to ashes yesterday by a fire. It was not known here whether there were any casualties but it is feared that there may have been a number of victims. Another blaze yesterday destroyed 700 buildings in Matsue City, Honshu.

New Army Plan Relegates Old War Horse to Oblivion

Squadrons of Light Combat Cars Will Replace Cavalry Chargers in Decision Reached After Study by Chief of Staff MacArthur.

(United Press.)

The war horse is passing from the stage of history after achieving a glorious record of valor. Since the World War generals have reckoned his value less and less. Yesterday the United States Army announced its decision virtually to abandon the Cavalry.

There will be a new Cavalry, but not of horses. Light, fleet tanks, bristling with armament, will take the place of the animate charger, which "neareth the call of trumpets afar off" and rushes into battle.

The War Department's decision to reorganize and mechanize the Cavalry—save for small units—was arrived at after a long study by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff. It followed, too, extensive tests of so-called "mechanized units" by the Army at Fort Eustice, Va., begun last fall.

MacArthur's recommendations were embodied in a 1,000-word statement, of which one paragraph contained the core:

"The Cavalry will undergo such general reorganization and reequipment as will enable it best to perform * * * (its missions).

"This may require at least two types of cavalry regiments, one

PARIS DIRECTS NEW BROADSIDE AT TRADE PACT

France Sums Up Views Opposing Union in Note to League.

GERMANY PREPARES DEFENSE OF SCHEME

Economic Independence of Austria Is Imperiled, French Claim.

Geneva, May 17 (A.P.).—While the rest of the international world rested today, France in a memorandum fired another volley at the Austro-German plan for a customs union.

The memorandum, a summary of the government's views of the proposed Austro-German trade agreement, will be presented to League of Nations Council, which will discuss the project tomorrow. Opposition to the move is based on three main grounds, as follows:

First—The customs union would compromise the economic independence of Austria and would thus entail a sompromise of her political independence.

Second—It would create serious difficulties over application of the most favored nation clause and lead to denunciation of existing commercial treaties.

Absorption of Austria Feared.

Third—Presentation by Germany and Austria of the "Fait Accompli" is objectionable, constituting "Negation of essential principles on which peace rests." The memorandum declares the prospect of merger of Austria and Germany into a single economic union brings the nations face to face with the question of whether Germany will not eventually absorb Austria.

Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, and his staff were busy tonight formulating a reply to the French statement.

In informed circles it is believed that the council, after the opposing view has been fully presented, will refer the Austro-German scheme to the World Court for judgment on its legality.

Resumption of the discussions of Europe's economic condition by the European commission tomorrow afternoon is expected to bring fourth further controversies on customs unions in general and this one in particular.

Council to Consider Disarmament.

The European body, after a thorough examination of various suggestions for relief, will probably refer the entire question to a subcommittee for study.

The future of the world's disarmament movement will be before the council session.

The general conference for arms limitation has been set for February 2, 1932, but there have been rumors this long-awaited event may be postponed because of recent international frictions.

The international situation in Europe, it is admitted in league circles, is even less propitious now for disarmament than it was at the time of the January council session.

Discouraging Factors Cited.

Excitement arising out of the German-Austrian customs union proposal, and the difficulties encountered afresh in Franco-Italian naval

3 Accept Invitations As Flag Test Judges

Dr. B. C. MacNeil, Gen. Anton Stephan and Col. U. S. Grant 3d Laud Project; $25 Is Offered to Design Winner.

Invitations extended by The Post to patriotic leaders in Washington to serve on a committee which will select a design for a flag for the District of Columbia, from those to be submitted in a contest sponsored by this paper, were accepted yesterday by three men prominent in civic and patriotic life. All three lauded the plan as filling a great need. They are:

Dr. B. C. MacNeil, departmental commander of the American Legion of the District; Gen. Anton Stephan, commander of the National Guard in the area comprising the District, Maryland, Virginia and part of Pennsylvania, and Col. U. S. Grant III, director of public buildings and parks and active in civic and patriotic organizations.

Further acceptances to serve on the committee are expected early this week from a number of other ptariotic leaders, both men and women.

A prize of $25 will be awarded the designer of the flag judged by the committee to be the most appropriate to become the emblem of the District. Besides this, the name of the prize winner will become distinguished in the history of the National Capital as the creator of its flag.

The men who yesterday accepted invitations to serve on the committee echoed the opinion of the District Commissioners that the plan is a splendid one. Gen. Stephan voiced particular enthusiasm. "The District feels its lack of insignia on more than oen occasion during the year," he observed. "When the National Guard in this area takes part in any function the District is the only unit without a flag. Our only insignia is oen worn on the shoulder bearing the design of the dome of the Capitol.

Even though the flag selected could could not become official without formal adoption by Congress, the Commissioners could adopt it for the District if they desired, and the emblem could be used by patriotic organizations, according to District authorities. "The Star-Spangled Banner," it is recalled, was sung as the national anthem for several generations before it was formally adopted by Congress at the last session.

Any one in the District is entitled to submit designs. They must be drawn with pen nad ink on white paper so that they may be reproduced in The Post. The entries should be addressed to the Flag Editor, care The Washington Post.

PARKER FAVORS SNELL AS NEXT HOUSE SPEAKER

Points Out Importance of 47 Electoral Votes in New York.

Statement Is Addressed, in Large Measure, to Western Bloc.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The battle for the office of Speaker of the House, conducted thus far in a more or less undercover manner, yesterday was lifted to the plane of open warfare.

In a public statement, Representative James S. Parker (Republican), of New York, made a plea for the selection of his colleague, Representative Bertrand H. Snell (Republican), of New York, as Speaker.

Representative Parker, an influential member of the House, is a close friend of Representative Snell, and it is presumed here in Washington that he issued his statement with the acquiescence of the member from Potsdam.

In appealing for support of Representative Snell for Speaker, Representative Parker did not contrast his qualities with those of other men who have been mentioned for the post—Majority Leader John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, for example. In fact, he ignored other candidates.

Importance of New York.

What he did was to stress the importance of New York to the Republican party in the 1932 election and to attempt to show that the Middle West and the West, not the East, now dominate the Congress.

But more than anything else, Representative Parker sought to stress the importance of pleasing New York Republicans in order to persuade them to get behind the Republican nominee for President in 1932.

"The 47 electoral votes of New York are vital to Republican success in electing a President next year," said Representative Parker, "and choice of Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, as Speaker will help tremendously to that end."

When Nicholas Longworth died two men were quickly mentioned for the post he had occupied. The first was Representative Tilson and the second was Representative Snell.

Had Long Ruled House.

The three—Longworth, Tilson and Snell—had long ruled the House, Mr. Longworth as Speaker, Mr. Tilson as Republican floor leader and Mr. Snell as chairman of the rules committee. The "logical" successor t oSpeaker Longworth, it was agreed, was Mr. Tilson. The friends of Mr. Snell, however, quickly arrayed themselves against logic and began a boom for the New Yorker. As has been said, though, it was more or less under cover.

In the weeks that have elapsed a dozen or more Republicans, in addition to Mr. Tilson and Mr. Snell, have been mentioned for the post. In fact, the belief has been growing that if a Republican is to get the post he will have to be a Republican from the Middle West, one acceptable to the Republican progressives.

Such is the narrow paper margin that divides the Republican strength

20,000 See Holman, Speed Pilot, Killed

Omaha, Nebr., May 17 (A.P.).—Death at nearly 300 miles an hour overtook Charles (Speed) Holman, daredevil veteran of the Nation's airways, today.

Before 20,000 aghast spectators at the Omaha air races, his trim little plane smashed to the ground depite desperate efforts to right it.

Trapped in the fuselage, he was killed by the terrific crash.

Holder of records for consecutive looping, outside loops and barrel rolling, Holman was performing the latter stunt as he had many times before.

He pointed the nose of the plane toward the ground in a full-power drive, motors roaring. He maneuvered it into a roll scarcely 100 feet from the ground. Then he tried to right the craft, but it was too late. The plane nosed downward, its motor on full blast and struck the earth with a deafening crash.

Though only 33, Holman had established a reputation in the Northwest States as a premier aviator. At 22 he entered aviation as a wing walker and parachute jumper. Later he became chief pilot for an aircraft company. In 1926 he became a mail pilot for the then newly established Northwest Airways, from Minneapolis-St. Paul to Milwaukee and Chicago.

The year following he led the field across the prairie and mountain States to win the Class A National Air Derby, and then became operations manager for Northwest Airways.

Charles Garbett, Shot in Chantecler Tragedy, May Survive.

KILLER'S BODY SENT TO HOME FOR BURIAL

Family Blames Taut Nerves From Study; Girl Says Man Was Sober.

As Charles Garbett, manager of the Club Chantecler of Le Paredis Cafe, hovered between life and death at Emergency Hospital last night, authorities sought to piece together facts which would give some motive for the murder of a policeman, the shooting of Garbett and the suicide of Robert S. Montgomery, New York social registerite and member of a prominent New York family.

The only plausible explanation for the young man's action came last night from an uncle in New York. He said that mental strain accompanying his third examination to become a certified public accountant had worn his nerves to the snapping point.

The young man had been employed by the firm of his father, which has a branch here, Lybrand, Ross Brothers, and Montgomery, during the months he had been in Washington preparing for the tests here which are traditionally rigorous.

Band Drowns Out Shots.

The triple shooting took place early yesterday morning as the band at the night club blared out the strains of "You're Driving Me Crazy." The popular tune drowned out the noise of the shots, and couples kept to the dance floor as the tragedy was enacted on the landing of the second floor of the club.

Montgomery, witnesses told police, first appeared at the night club with Miss Norvell Munford, of Nineteenth street near S street northwest. Washington debutante, about 11 o'clock Saturday night. Some argument apparently arose over a table for the man and he and Miss Munford left the place, Miss Munford going to her home and Montgomery returning to his quarters at the Racquet Club.

The young man later appeared at the crowded club, argued with Garbett and then drew a .45-caliber automatic pistol from an arm holster.

Garbett cried: "Oh, no, don't do that! Don't shoot!" but Montgomery pulled the trigger and the night club manager collapsed to the floor.

Montgomery dashed toward the stairway and met Patrolman Jesse Taylor, of the Second Precinct, running up the stairs. The policeman had no chance to draw his gun. Montgomery felled him with two bullets under the heart and Taylor died almost instantly.

On reaching the street Montgomery fired two bullets under his heart and died before he reached Emergency Hospital.

The student was the son of Col. Robert H. Montgomery, accountant attorney, who makes his home in Greenwich, Conn., and has offices at 385 Madison avenue, New York City. Col. Montgomery, secretary of the War Policies Commission, has been in Washington since March 6, having registered at the Shoreham Hotel on that date. His visit was in connection with his work with the commission.

Listed in Social Register.

Both Col. Montgomery and his son are listed in the New York social register, and the younger Montgomery was named in the Boston social register, where he took a prominent part in the social life of that city in 1928 where he was connected with a branch of his father's firm. In his pocket at the time of his death he carried a card, asking to have his name transferred to the register as a resident of Washington.

Col. Montgomery is professor of accounting and member of the administrative board of the Columbia University school of business. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American War, and during the World War served as a colonel, being attached to the General Staff in Washington. He was a member and organizer of the War Department Board of Appraisers, representative on the price fixing commission on the War Industries

2 DIE, 2 ARE INJURED WHEN CAR HITS POLE

Three Bethesda and One City Youth in Montgomery County Wreck.

Two Bethesda youths were fatally injured early yesterday when the automobile left the Rockville pike, three miles north of Bethesda, and plunged into a telephone pole. Two other passengers were injured.

The dead are Calvin L. Brown, 18 years old, 225 Melrose avenue, Woodmont, Bethesda, and Ludwell L. Lee, 21 years old, of Watkins avenue, Bethesda. The two injured are Lawrence McCullough, 21 years old, 4307 Ellicott street northwest, and Cecil Baker, 221 Ray avenue, Bethesda.

The four were returning from Rockville, where they had left Vance Beall, a friend, who had accompanied them on a trip to Glen Echo earlier in the evening. McCullough was at the wheel as the car rounded a curve on the turnpike. He lost control of the car and it left the roadway and crashed into a pole.

Lee and McCullough were placed in an automobile driven by Fred Root, 430 Shepherd street northwest, and were taken to Georgetown Hospital where Lee died three hours later. McCullough is under treatment there for a fracture of the right arm.

Brown and Baker were taken to Emergency Hospital by the Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department Rescue Squad. Brown was pronounced dead upon his arrival at the hospital. Baker is under treatment for a fracture of the leg.

The case was investigated by Montgomery County Policemen Windsor C. Poole and D. D. Padgett.

Havana, May 17 (A.P.).—The Government, its military leaders swiftly shuffled, its army and police reserves ready ta critical points, and with five provinces again under military supervision, held itself ready today for any contingency, although denying rumors of revolution.

TALLEY DAY DYING FROM GUN WOUND

Legation Robbery Suspect, Later Released, Given No Hope by Doctors.

Talley Day, 24 years old, was seriously wounded last night in a house on New York avenue near Ninth avenue northwest.

Day was held for investigation in connection with the attempt to loot the liquor supply of the Salvadorean Legation early Wednesday morning, but was subsequently released.

Day was brought to the hospital by two men who gave their names as Joseph Dermer and Harry Connedy, of M street near Fifteenth street northwest. Attaches of the hospital said the men did not say in what manner Day received his wound.

Little hope was held for Day's recovery by doctors at the hospital, the bullet having torn through his skull. Doctors said he would not likely live until morning.

Saloons of Enemy Seized by Capone

Police in Chicago Expect New Gang Outbreak as Result of Raids.

Chicago, May 17 (A.P.).—The Herald and Examiner says it has learned from Federal and local police sources that henchmen of Al Capone last week confiscated 41 saloons and resorts formerly controlled by Matt Kolb, czar of the Northwest Side. The paper says these officials expect a gang war, perhaps as sanguinary as any Chicago has known in years, to result.

Loaded in three cars, the paper says, the Capone buccaneers visited the Kolb resorts, one after another, tossing out gambling paraphernalia, slot machines, beer and liquor, and substituted Capone material, at the same time passing out the information that "Kolb is out!"

Armada of 500 Army Planes Flies in Review at Dayton

Fairfield Air Depot, Dayton, Ohio, May 17 (A.P.).—Before 200,000 spectators, Uncle Sam's air armada of 500 Army planes passed in review late today. Four minor mishaps occurred, but there were no casualties.

The 500 ships left the field early in the afternoon and after two hours in the air passed the reviewing stand on Fairfield Air Depot, where Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, expressed his approval.

Roaring over the field at a speed of from 100 to 140 miles an hour, the ships in eschelon formation, proved to be a spectacle such as never before has been tried. The ships seemed as though they were tied together, so close were their formations, although actually they were several yards apart.

Crowds held their breath as the ships came onto the field and it seemed to many spectators that they would collide. The only comment from army officers was that the formations were as near perfect as possible.

Necks were craned for hours as thousands from all over Ohio and Indiana stood on the water-soaked fields around Fairfield.

In getting into line for the spectacle, which will be given an "official showing" in Chicago Tuesday,

Board, and chief of the price fixing section of the General Staff.

The younger Montgomery was a graduate of Princeton University, receiving a diploma in 1927. After his graduation from the university he lived for a time in Boston and was a figure in the gay social life.

Was Expert Marksman.

He was connected with his father's firm and was employed in the Boston branch until a few months ago, when he came to Washington to attempt the certified public accountant's tests for the third time a few months ago. In Boston the young man resided in the Beacon Hill section and was a member of the University Club and of the Arlington Rifle Club.

He was regarded as an expert marksman by members of the rifle club and was equally adept with a rifle or pistol. While in Boston he was granted a permit to carry a pistol in 1928. This card was found on his body by Washington police, after the shooting, together his his driver's permit.

Montgomery had been hard at his struggle to overcome the obstacles of his third certified public accountant's test during the greater part of last week. He faced examinations on Thursday, Friday and on the day of the tragedy.

Miss Munford, who said that she met the young man for the first time that fatal Saturday night, said that he appeared distraught, and that he mentioned that he was worn and nervous from the strain of examinations, but that he did not tell her the nature of these tests.

Met Through Mutual Friend.

Miss Munford said that she made Montgomery's acquaintance through a mutual friend and that she had never seen him before Saturday night. She said that she had left the club and was at home before the shooting occurred. She said that when some one called her on the telephone shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning to tell her about the shooting she believed it was all a joke and would not credit the story.

Miss Munford, who is an attractive brunette, made her debut here about six years ago. She has spent much of her time in Europe, living in France for several years before she returned to Washington with her mother to make her home.

The family of Montgomery, according to Associated Press dispatches from New York, also believed that the strain of his C. P. A. examinations caused the young man to run amuck. He had twice failed them, it was said, and the family believed that he feared another failure.

An uncle, James M. Shaw, last night issued a statement on behalf of Col. Montgomery, after the young man's father had returned to New York from Washington.

Observed No Bad Traits.

"Never has any one in the family observed any bad traits in the boy's character," Mr. Shaw declared, "and none was more shocked at this tragedy than I.

"Col. Montgomery last week noticed that his son was exhausted by his months of preparation for the examinations in Washington, and suggested that Robert take his apartment at the Shoreham Hotel for two months or more to rest.

"Naturally he did not know that his son's nerves were at the snapping point.

"The examinations began on Thursday, and up to that time the young man had gone three days and nights without sleep. The fear that he might have lowered his nervous resistance. The only explanation we have is that his brain suddenly gave way."

Young Montgomery was a member of the U. S. Army Reserve and it was apparently his service pistol which was used in the murder and suicide, Mr. Shaw said. Police found ten bullets in the pockets of his dress clothes when Montgomery's body was examined at the hospital after the shooting. He had fired six bullets from the automatic during the firing at the night club.

Father Overcome by Grief.

Col. Montgomery, apparently overcome by grief at the tragedy, denied himself to all callers yesterday in his suite at the Shoreham Hotel. He would not even talk to police, but friends of the family, including J. Marvin Haynes, local manager for the firm of Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery, acted for him.

These friends appeared at the hospital where Garbett is struggling valiantly against death and gave instructions that the night club manager was to have the best medical attention possible.

They appeared again at the second precinct station in an attempt to obtain young Montgomery's personal effects—a suit to bury him in, and other necessary things, and while there intimated to police officials that Col. Montgomery desired to do everything possible for the family of Patrolman Taylor.

Taylor, who lived at 715 Madison street, is survived by a widow and a son 16 years of age. The patrolman was 36 years old, and had been a member of the force for six years, with an excellent service record.

Body Taken to New York.

Last night Col. Montgomery and his friends took a sad journey back to New York with the body of the young man. Police formalities had been completed.

Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt held that no inquest was necessary. He issued a certificate of murder and suicide in the two deaths and the body was released from the District morgue to a local undertaker for preparation for burial. Funeral arrangements for the young man have not been completed.

Officials at Emergency Hospital said last night that Garbett had a fighting chance for life. He was shot through the left lung and lost much blood before he was taken to the hispital, but a blood transfusion was performed yesterday morning and it is believed he will recover unless complications set in.

Funeral arrangements for Patrolman Taylor have not been completed. Capt. L. I. H. Edwards, metropolitan police personnal officer, yesterday ordered that flags at all police precincts throughout the city were to fly at half mast until after the funeral.

In addition to his wife and son, Wayne, Patrolman Taylor is survived by one sister, Mrs. Florence Laughlin, of Washington.

Garbett Given Quick Aid.

Prompt action of an employe of The Washington Post probably saved Garbett's life. Dr. Edwin W. Pritchett, who gave up the study of medicine for newspaper work, was at lunch in a restaurant near Le Paradis when the shooting took place.

He heard the two shots Montgomery fired at Patrolman Taylor and ran across the street to the entrance of the cafe. Before he arrived Montgomery had turned the gun on himself. Dr. Pritchett said that he felt Montgomery's pulse and found it very weak. He went into the entrance of the night club and found Patrolman Taylor mortally wounded on the steps.

Then some one from the cafe took him up to where Garbett lay. Dr. Pritchett stopped the flow of blood from Garbett's wounds with a packing of gauze before the police and fire rescue squad reached the scene.

Patrolman Taylor's service pistol is still missing. It was taken by someone at the scene of the shooting and a lookout was sent for it by police last night. Dr. Pritchett said that when he went into the night club some man had taken Taylor's pistol and was covering Montgomery with it as the young man lay dying on the street.

SUSPECT IN GIGANTIC SWINDLE IS SEIZED

Briton Arrested as Agents Continue Search for "Jake the Barber."

Philadelphia, May 17 (A.P.).—A rendezvous between a London woman and her husband, sought for more than a year by Scotland Yard operatives, early today led to capture of Harry Geen, alias Gallow, 31, charged with swindling prominent British citizens out of millions of dollars.

Geen, according to police, had recently narrowly escaped capture in New Orleans, Miami, Los Angeles, Chicago and New York. He had not been suspected of hiding in Philadelphia until his wife, who landed from London early Saturday in New York, received a telegram telling her to meet him here.

Department of Justice agents made the arrest as Geen and his wife entered a stylish Germantown apartment hotel.

Geen, British subject, refused to talk to officers and was being held tonight for instructions from Chicago police. Charges against him were filed in Chicago last week by Godfrey Haggard, British consul general there.

The Broadstreet Press, Ltd., the Prince of Wales and other prominent Britishers, Department of Justice officials said, were among victims of Geen and his fellow-workers, who included "Jake the Barber" Factor, now being sought.

The schemes employed included sale of oil wells that did not exist and Florida land completely submerged by water, officials added.

The Prince of Wales, they said, invested in oil wells at Geen's suggestion while they were at Monte Carlo two years ago.

Mrs. Geen was released after questioning. She said she had married Geen several years ago and thought he was a stock broker. She refused to divulge her former name, saying that she was a member of a prominent London family which would suffer if its name was disclosed.

United States Commissioner Patterson said Geen would be arraigned tomorrow and probably would be held under heavy bail awaiting extradition to England.

Chicago, May 17 (A.P.).—The financial operations of John "Jake the Barber" Factor tonight were subjected to microscopic scrutiny by officials of the United States and British governments with a view to impounding his assets for the benefit of investors he is alleged to have defrauded.

$3,300,000 Swindle Charged.

Factor, who is wanted specifically for defrauding the Broad Street Press, Ltd., of London, of $3,300,000, continued today to evade arrest, although his attorney, Arthur L. Swartz, offered to surrender the fugitive if he were permitted bail.

Factor, Government agents learned, had huge brokerage accounts with houses in Chicago, Los Angeles, New York and Paris. Through one local house, it was said, he recently converted about $4,000,000 worth of securities into bonds. Officials indicated civil proceedings would be begun toward levying on these assets.

If it is found that Factor is not a citizen of the United States, he also may be subject to investigation for tax delinquencies by the British government.

His two partners, Harry Geen and Harry Kline, the former under arrest in Germantown, Pa., and the latter held in New York, are thought by Federal agents to be American citizens. If this is established, their financial dealings will be checked by United States revenue officers.

Cites Precedents for Bail.

Swartz today notified United States Commissioner E. K. Walker that he was sending him numerous legal precedents to uphold his contention that Factor would be entitled to bail until such time as his extradition is decided. He asked the commissioner to familiarize himself thoroughly with these citations so he would have them available when or if Factor surrenders—or is apprehended.

Mr. Walker said that the extradition treaty between the United States and Great Britain did not make any provision for bail, although swindling is a bailable offense in both countries.

On the basis of Mr. Swartz's overtures, the authorities deemed it probable Factor would surrender tomorrow or within the next few days.

Keep Watch Over Apartment.

Meantime, police and Government men kept watch over the luxurious apartment where Mrs. Factor is living and the homes of his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cohen.

Franklin R. Overbeyer, Chicago attorney, who is representing Consul General Godfrey Haggard of Great Britain in the matter, dispatched warrants by air mail today so that Geen may be extradited from Pennsylvania.

Local police informed investigating officials today that last March Factor asked for police protection, complaining that he had learned of a plot to kidnap him for ransom. The guard was later withdrawn at Factor's request. At that time it was not known British officials were investigating Factor.

Fort Humphreys Private Held After Battle With Woman.

Private Clarence L. Walker, 33 years old, attached to Fort Humphreys, last night was charged with assault on a colored woman in an alleged speakeasy on Seventh near E street northeast, near which police recovered 236 bottles of alleged beer.

Mrs. Verda Romanowski, 26 years old, who lives at the house, was charged with possession of the beer, which, police said, was found in a shed near the Romanowski home.

Vera Johnson, colored, who said she was employed by Mrs. Romanowski, told police that Walker struck her while in the speakeasy and she was forced to defend herself with a safety pin, which she used with telling effect.

500 PLANES FLY OVER DAYTON REHEARSING 'WAR' MANEUVERS

each ship traveled more than 400 miles. The planes took off from the field by organizations, the fast pursuits being first away. They were forced to travel the longest distance, while the attack, bombers and observation ships traveled in an area 75 to 100 miles from the field. To get to rendezvous points the ships flew as far north as St. Marys and as far southwest as Cincinnati.

After the review the ships headed for Springfield, where the review broke up and the ships cruised as far east and north as Delaware and south to the neighborhood of Chillicothe. The dress rehearsal today will be repeated again tomorrow morning.

While the 500 ships were in the area radio ships on the ground keep in constant touch with aquadron and flight commanders, issuing orders and keeping in touch generally with certain flights.

Before the review got under way two pursuit ships put a smoke screen across the southern half of the field. For five minutes it completely obliterated view of ships parked in that section. The screen, which is usually good for covering ground maneuvers from ten to fifteen minutes, was blown away by a stiff ground wind.

A smoke curtain laid down by a bomber a short time later was more successful, however.

Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of Air Corps, arrived from Washington late today, just in time to witness a demonstration by pursuit, attack and bombardment planes. He planned to remain a few days as an observer only.

A forced landing, that of a bomber of the second bombardment group from Langley Field, Va., took place near Union City, Ind., on the State line. The ship was forced down on a small field by a clogged gas line and in making the landing Lieut. Leonard Harmon struck a fence and stripped some of the fabric from a wing. The plane was temporarily repaired and returned to the field.

Three Ships Damaged.

Three other minor mishaps occurred in landing on the soggy fields. Lieut. John Kirby, of the first pursuit group, Selfridge Field, and Dennis Mulligan, New York National Guard, and Capt. J. F. Outlaw, Tennessee National Guard, nosed over and damaged their ships somewhat. Lieut. Mulligan was carrying Sergt. James Crosby as his obsetrver. None was hurt, however.

It was believed the three planes would be repaired and retsored to service before the division moves on Chicago. Standby points, points around which the ships will fly until they have sufficient time to reach their places in the Chicago review, were announced today. The order for the proposed flight follows:

Division flying as units leave here Tuesday shortly after breakfast for Chicago by way of Marion, Frankfort and Logansport, Ind. On arrival at Chicago various organizations will go to Sky Harbor, Pal-Waukee, municipal, Curtiss Reynolds and Ford-Lansing airports for the night.

Chicago Review Planned.

Wednesday the planes will take off between 8:45 and 9:45 o'clock a. m., daylight time, except a special combat group composed of a squadron of bombers, pursuit and attack ships, which will put on a demonstration over Municipal pier about 10:30 a. m. During the demonstration the remainder of the force will form for review. Organizations were ordered to rendezvous over Plainfield, Eola, West Chicago, Spaulding, Glencoe, Winnetka and Evanston.

When the review is completed, divisions will return to Dayton via Indianapolis, South Bend, Logansport, Lima and Toledo, Ohio. All ships except observation will return here. Observation ships will meet at Cleveland and proceed to New York by way of Rochester, N. Y., Pittsburgh and Middletown, Pa., and Washington and Aberdeen, Md.

Weather conditions throughout the West today were not good, and indications were the weather might cut a large swath in the arranged program. Two low-pressure areas, centered in Arizona and along the Canadian border this morning, led to a weather forecast of showers tomorrow.

Officers said that if the weather interfered with any one phase of the operation that phase would be discarded entirely and the next day's program carried out.

CITY MAN, GIRL HURT IN MARYLAND CRASH

Halethorpe Police Arrest Driver of Car Wrecked Near Baltimore.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 17.—Two persons, both of Washington, were injured early yesterday morning when the car in which they were passengers was in collision with two other cars on the Washington boulevard, near Halethorpe. James M. Utterback, Eleventh street northwest near D street, also of Washington, the alleged driver of the car, is being held at the Halethorpe police station, charged with driving on the wrong side of the road.

The injured are Miss Ethel Hagan, 19, of Thirtieth street northwest near R street, and Michael J. McInerney, 52, East Capitol street near Ninth street, who were riding in the rumble seat at the time of the accident, Halethorpe police declared. Both were taken to St. Agnes Hospital, where Miss Hagan remained with a compound fracture of the right arm and McInerney was treated for cuts and bruises.

Patrolman Norman Reinhardt, of the Halthorpe police, said that Utterback accompanied the injured to the hospital but the disappeared. Shortly after dawn, patrolman Reinhardt arrested Utterback as he was viewing the wreckang of his car, which was piled up on a lawn alongside the roadway.

Utterback was bound towards Washington and the other cars were Baltimore bound when the accident occured, the police said. Henry Vogtman, of the 2100 block McHenry street, Baltimore, and William Dobson, of Relay, Md., were the drivers of the other cars. Neither was injured.

Fire Destroys Country Club Near Clarksburg

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 17.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the main clubhouse and locker rooms of the Clarksburg Country Club early this morning at its grounds several miles south of the city, causing a loss of $35,000 including locker property losses of members.

The realty and furnishings were covered by insurance and plans are being made to rebuild. The club structure was one of the oldest of the kind in the State.

'SPEED' HOLMAN DIES STUNTING AIRPLANE

He had earned dual recognition for his daring aerial feats and for his coolness and capacity as a mail and passenger pilot. He had flown the Northwest Lines since 1926 without a single accident.

In February, 1928, he set a new record of looping the loop at Minneapolis, turning over 1,093 times. About a month later he tried again and made 1, 433 loops.

In May of 1929 he won the first Gardiner trophy race by maintaining an average speed of 156 miles an hour over the 468-mile course, from St. Louis to Indianapolis and return. In August of the same year he flew a trimotored plane at the Cleveland National Air Races on its back, the first time this stunt had ever been attempted. To top off the performance, he looped the two-ton ship five times.

Officials, experienced aviators and mechanics could not agree on the cause of the crash. Capricious winds, a failing motor and a defective safety belt all were mentioned.

A Department of Commerce official who witnessed the crash was quoted as expressing the belief that the biplane hit a downward air current which prevented righting it or gaining altitude; a mechanic said he discovered a bolt which held the safety belt to the seat had broken, possibly permitting the occupant to fall from the plane and thus lose control, and others blamed a failing motor.

Officials of the air meet said Holman had not been engaged for his final flight but had volunteered to "do some stunts" to help the afternoon program. Holman's home was in Minneapolis. His widow survives.

WAR HORSE PASSING IN PLANS OF ARMY

(horsed) in which the horse and mule may remain only where they can not be replaced by the motor for the performance of difficult tactical missions. A second type of cavalry (mechanized) in which the horse and mule shall have disappeared entirely."

The chief of cavalry, Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, announced one regiment of horse cavalry will be "mechanized."

The present mechanized force which was was assembled at Fort Eustis last year, will be reorganized as a mechanized cavalry regiment consisting of armored car squadrons, combat car squadrons equipped with vehicles resembling the Christie tank, and machine-gun squadrons transported in cross-country cars."

"This cavalry regiment will be reinforced by mechanized artillery, engineers and chemical warfare groups, and all cared for by other groups of ordnance, quartermaster, signal corps and medical troops.

Explaining reasons for the change, MacArthur said:

"Cavalry acquired its name during a period when soldiers mounted on horses were able to move more rapidly upon an enemy than any other arm. Modern firearms have eliminated the horse as a weapon and, as a means of transportation, he has become, next to the dismounted man, the slowest means of transportation."

Now, according to the War Department, the Cavalry forces number only 6,000 out of a total force of 118,000 men. The greatest concentration of mounted forces is at Fort Bliss, Tex., near El Paso, and along the rest of the Mexican border.

The Army has about 800 tanks, but most of them are old, relics of the World War, and unfitted for use in a light mechanized force.

Officers explained the new Cavalry of steel will employ light, fast machines. The War Department recently called for bids on up to seven tanks—or, to use their new name, "combat cars"—capable of speeding 40 miles per hours on wheels, or 25 on caterpillar tracks, to which they must be convertible. This type will be the nucleus of the newer, deadlier cavalry, it is understood.

PARKER FOR SNELL AS HOUSE SPEAKER

and the Democratic strength in the next House that a couple of Western Progressives will be able to determine whether the Speaker shall be a Republican or a Democrat.

Addresses to Western Bloc.

The statement of Representative Parker, in a large measure, was addressed to these Western Progressives.

After pointing out that the selection of Representative Snell as the next Speaker would help the Republicans to carry New York in 1932, Representative Parker went on:

"Every calculation I have seen showing how the Democrats can count up enough electoral votes to win the Presidency in 1932, includes the 47 votes New York will have under reapportionment. Despite the precedent of 1916, I think no reasonable man or woman who knows anything about politics will contend that the Democrats can win next year without New York, but if they carry New York they will have a real chance."

"Yet this talk persists that it would be a political mistake for the Republicans to choose a Speaker from New York. Why? Is it to be seriously contended that New York, which gave Harding more than 1,000,000 plurality and Coolidge more than 800,000 should be allowed to continue the drift toward the Democratic party which has so far resulted in our having a Democratic governor and two Democratic United States senators? And which drift, combined with the popularity of Al Smith, cut that million majority for Harding in 1920 to a mere 100,000 for Hoover in 1928?"

HIGH COURT RETURNS TODAY FROM RECESS

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court will come back from a fortnights' recess today determined to dispose of a long list of cases awaiting decision before adjourning for the summer.

Its docket includes 81 such cases, but by consolidating controversies presenting similar issues the court plans to dispose of them in 37 or 38 written opinions.

On the list is Arizonas' attack upon the validity of the law authorizing the construction of Hoover Dam on the Colorado River.

The court also has before it challenges of President Hoover's oil conservation policy, the California red flag law, the Minnesota press suppression law and the Indiana tax on chain stores.

Naturalization cases before the court are attracting wide attention. They are the efforts of the Government to exclude from citizenship the Rev. Douglas C. MacIntosh and Maria A. Bland, the former a professor of theology at Yale and the latter a nurse in New York City. They declined to take an unqualified oath agreeing to bear arms in defense of the Government in any war in which it might become embroiled. Both are Canadians.

After today the court plans two more opinion days, May 25 and June 1. Motions will be received on the former date, but not on the latter. Before adjourning for the summer, memorial services are planned for the late Chief Justice Taft and Associate Justice Sanford. The bar of the court already has held such ceremonies.

Strong Defense System Advocated by Tardieu

Mulhouse, France, May 17 (A.P.).—France's army now numbers only 522,000 men, compared with 725,000 in 1922, Andre Tardieu, minister of agriculture, today told a gathering of reserve officers.

He said the reduction necessitated the fullest functioning of the defensive system and instruction of reservists must not be neglected. He reported there also were 120,000 reserve officers, 98,000 of them World War veterans.

bitterly about the 'iniquitous rates' in the Hawley-Smoot act had the opportunity to vote in favor of revision of the agricultural rates alone and on both occasions Democratic votes spiked the so-called 'iniquitous rates' into the bill."

Mr. Byrns said American exports and imports for the first quarter of 1931 were $742,065,000 below the same period last year and $1,261,462,000 or almost 50 per cent under the same quarter for 1929.

"How much of this slump in international commerce is due to the tariff policy of the Hoover administration, possibly no two will agree," he said, "but it can not be reasonably disputed that the Hawley-Smoot tariff has been a most important factor in the decline, resulting as it did in some 45 or more foreign governments imposing retaliatory tariffs against our goods, and this probably had more than anything else to do with our foreign commerce slumping to but little more than 50 per cent of the volume of two years ago."

Mr. Byrns asked:

"If wage levels rise in the ratio of tariff protection, why is it that European countries, with higher and more general tariffs, are not paying higher wages and do not have even higher standards of living than obtain in this country?"

"The cry that we must not lower the tariff lest wages be lowered and our standards of living be lessened, is a false cry intended only to deceive," he said. "Economic conditions, and especially our international commerce, so essential to general prosperity, have been, and are, much too serious for such false arguments to carry weight very much longer."

"At the rate our foreign markets are now vanishing," he added, "in two more years we will have no market whatever for our surplus production."

negotiations are cited as discouraging factors.

The council must select a chairman for the disarmament congress, a decision which it was unable to make last January. The name of Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, now appears to be foremost in consideration for the chairmanship.

The council will confirm or rescind its provisional choice of Geneva as seat of the conference. Confirmation is probable, but Barcelona and Biarritz have been pressing their claims enthusiastically.

HOOVER, AIDS AGREE TO SAVE $17,000,000

Economy Measures Decided On at Conference Held at Rapidan Camp.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover returned from his Rapidan camp last night convinced that $17,000,000 could be saved in the Interior Department in the next three years.

This conviction was the result of conferences held at the camp with officials of the department. Much of the saving was planned in eliminating some of the department's activities and deferring work which eventually will have to be done.

It was estimated that $4,000,000 could be saved this year; $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 next year, and $7,000,000 to $8,000,000 the following year. Just what activities of the department would be curtailed was not announced. Neither was there any indication of what projects would be deferred.

Rain Speeds Departure.

The party's intention to remain in camp until this morning was interrupted by showers about lunch time, and threat of further rain brought the stay to a close yesterday afternoon. It was feared the dirt road leaving the camp would be dangerously slippery later. Mr. Hoover had preferred to avoid heavy Sunday afternoon traffic near the Capital.

President Hoover was able to get in some fishing shortly after his arrival Saturday morning. He caught several Sizable trout. Other members of the party, which included Edward H. Butler, publisher of the Buffalo Evening News, and Mrs. Butler, and Senator Hastings, of Delaware, spent their leisure time hiking and horseback riding, or reading in the big recreational hall.

The start for the camp was delayed by an unusualy prolonged medicine ball game and when the President arrived he found some of the officials asked to the conference had not reached the camp. Among them was Secretary Wilbur, who had been a player in the medicine ball game.

Conference Held Saturday.

The morning session was called off but all Saturday afternoon was devoted to business.

The President found the weather warm and pleasant at his camp. The stream, which almost went dry late last fall after the drought, is now filled and the fish apparently survived the dry speil. The dogwood, which has disappeared in the valleys, is still clothing the mountainside behind the camp.

The conference with Interior Department chiefs was the second of a series the Chief Executive expected to hold during the summer. Last week War Department officials sat down with the President to find ways and means of effecting economies in that branch of the Government. Abandonment of obsolete forts and concentration of troops in a few posts was announced as the backbone of a program expected to result "in real savings" in the War Department.

16 Girls Charged In Capital Crime

Indictments to Be Asked for Arson in North Carolina Fires.

Carthage, N. C., May 17 (A.P.).—Indictments charging sixteen girls with first degree arson, a capital offense in North Carolina, are to be handed the Moore County grand jury here tomorrow.

Solicitor Don Phillips has announced he will seek true bills against the girls in connection with the burning March 12 of two buildings at Samarkand, State institution for delinquent girls.

Since being confined in jail six of the girls have rioted twice, setting fire to their bunks on one occasion and firing the jail on another. Conviction of first degree arson in this State automatically carries a sentence of death by electrocution.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR HOLD CELEBRATION

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Dr. William Mosely Brown, grand junior warden of the Grand Commandery of Virginia, Knights Templar, addressed the Ascension Day gathering of the Knights Templar of this city and Washington yesterday afternoon in the George Washington National Masonic Memorial Temple on Shooters Hill. The auditorium was filled to capacity.

The members of Old Dominion Commandery, No. 11, headed by Commander R. Samuel Luckett, and about 90 Sir Knights of Washington, headed by High Eminent Grand Commander Eugene E. Thompson, of the District of Columbia, and other grand officers, left the Masonic Temple in Cameron street for the march to the new temple, with an escort of motorcycle police and the Citizens Band. Invocation was by the Rev. Emmett R. Spencer, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, who led in reciting the Apostle's Creed, while the lesson was read by the Rev. Dr. D. L. Snyder, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, who also pronounced the benediction.

Hymns appropriate to the day were sung by a quartet—Mrs. Harrie White, Mrs. W. A. Ross, Edwin Billheimer and Henry Nestor, with Mrs. George E. Warfield at the organ.

Commander Luckett then introduced Eminent Sir Knight Brown, who delivered an address on the order and after the benediction the assemblage marched back to the Cameron street temple where all Sir Knights were reviewed by High Eminent Grand Commander Thompson before dismissal.

In the suit of Robert F. Downham against the City Council of Alexandria, in which he seeks to erect a gas filling station at King street and Russell road, for which a permit has been denied by the council, City Attorney Carl Budweasky has filed a motion to dismiss the bill filed by Mr. Downham for an injunction to restrain the city from interfering with him in erecting the proposed gas station. The motion will be heard in Richmond Wednesday before Judge Luther B. Way in the United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia.

If the city loses on its motion it will mean the case will be tried on its merits in the United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia here.

The Alexandria United Charities has announced that unless additional contributions are made for the continuance of their work, the body will be compelled to deny all appeals for help, as the treasury is depleted to such an extent that April bills are not yet paid. It is pointed out there are many aged needy persons who will suffer when their weekly stipend is cut off. An appeal to citizens for additional contributions is urged and Treasurer Thomas Chauncey will gladly receive any donation for this cause.

The May festival planned for pupils of St. Agnes Episcopal School, and which has been postponed from time to time owing to inclement weather, will be presented this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock if fair weather continues. A beautifully costumed play from Grimm's Fairy Tales will be presented.

Plans are being made for a card party on Monday, June 1, afternoon and evening, in Gadsby's Tavern ballroom, by a committee of the American Legion Auxiliary for the benefit of the Legion Post fund for interest on the purchase price of the tavern. Games will be played in the historic ballroom of the old tavern, and this will be the second event in the ballroom since the property became the home of the American Legion Post.

The women's committee of the Virginia Public Service Co. will give a card party Tuesday, May 26, at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the building for benefit of the Alexandria Children's Home and Day Nursery. Mrs. Eunice A. Minor is chairman of reservations.

The Alexander Garden Club will hold a meeting tomorrow morning with Mrs. D. Mauchlin Niven, at her home, Burnt Oaks, on Braddock Heights.

FAIRFAX PHYSICIANS HIT FEDERALIZATION

County Medical Society Has Meeting to Air Views on Proposals.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Fairfax County Medical Society at its regular meeting held at the home of its present, Dr. C. A. Ransom, in Falls Church, went on record as opposing the federalization of medical practice.

Those speaking on the different phases of this question were Dr. G. F. Simpson, of Purcellville, president and Dr. William O. Bailey, of Richmond, secretary of the public relations committee of the Medical Society of Virginia; Dr. J. E. Knight, of Warrenton and Dr. John Gibson, of Leesburg, who expressed their views of the problem from a local, State and national viewpoint.

The doctors contended that such problems as care of indigent sick, vaccination of school children against diphtheria, smallpox and typhoid fever, prevention and treatment of rabies and such national programs as narcotic week and cancer week should be discussed from the doctor's viewpoint with the citizens of the county in open meetings to be held each month during the year in the principal towns of the county.

This plan has been successfully carried out by the doctors and citizens of Loudoun County. The Loudoun Medical Society is now holding preschool clinics with no charge to those who can not pay and with scale charges according to the ability of the others who are able to pay a fee.

President Ransom haas appointed a committee composed of Dr. F. M. Brooks, of Fairfax, chairman, Dr. William Myer, of Herndon, Dr. William P. Caton, of Accotink, Dr. S. B. Moore, of Alexandria and Dr. John Smallwood, of Falls Church to work out a plan so that the local medical association can establish contact with the various public bodies and other organizations in Fairfax County during the ensuing year. The committee will hold its first meeting next Saturday at the home of Dr. Brooks, near Fairfax.

The May term of the Fairfax County Circuit Court will open this morning with Judge Walter T. McCarthy presiding. The criminal docket at this term promises to be small. The major portion of the cases to be tried will be for the violation of the State prohibition law. A grand jury will be summoned from among the bystanders this morning to hear the presentments by Commonwealth Attorney Wilson M. Farr.

The felony jury at this term of court has been summoned for tomorrow morning. County Clerk F. W. Richardson has certified the names of 30 persons to Sheriff E. T. Kirby. Of this number, Sheriff Kirby has summoned 26 for jury service. The names certified are H. M. Gaston, of Annandale; Eugene Gunnell, of Vienna; O. J. Channel, of Falls Church; A. L. Haight, of Fairfax Station; W. S. Keya, of Herndon; Sidney Wiley, of Fairfax; T. Bentley Mason, of Mount Vernon; Herbert O. Blunt, of Groveton; H. W. Brumback, of Spring Hill; E. W. Daniels, of Dranesville District; W. H. Bennett, of Annandale; Arthur M. Bowling, of Mount Vernon; Victor C. Bowling, of Mount Vernon; Victor C. Donaldson, of Seminary; Herman B. Gasch, of Spring Hill; C. L. Smith, of Oakton; George W. Byrne, of Pender; Herbert L. Seamons, of Herndon; James F. Pullman, of Mount Vernon; Lloyd E. Wright, of Vienna; C. J. Costello, of Seneca; Mason F. Smith, of Herndon; H. C. Zimmerman, of Mount Vernon; George P. Harrison, jr., of Herndon; D. W. Mathers, of Clifton; J. W. Gaines, of Baileys Cross Roads; Carroll V. Shreve, of Falls Church; Edward C. Gibbs, of Mount Vernon; Arthur D. Kirby, of Groveton; Henry Stabler, of Sideburn, and J. Courtney Sullivan, of Mount Vernon.

The names o fthe persons summoned for the civil jury, which meets on Wednesday, are: Maurice K. Stround, of Floris, George Baukman, of Oakton, A. H. Burgess, of Dranesville district; Charles K. Kaiser, of Merrifield; J. W. Cox, of Mount Vernon, Jasper A. Hunt, of Navy; Arthur W. Harkness, of Vienna; James M. Hummer, of Dranesville district, and W. F. P. Reid, of Groveton.

The Northern Virginia Odd Fellows Association will meet this evening in the I. O. O. F. Hall at Accotink, as guests of the Accotink Lodge, No. 75. The initiatory degre will be conferred on a class of candidates.

The nursing class which was formed by Mrs. Herbert Seamons in the town of Vienna and which held its meetings the past winter at the home of Mrs. John Ruff, has completed its course of instruction and of the 27 total enrollment, 14 have been present at all the meetings and have passed the examinations. These members will be awarded their diplomas tomorrow when the class holds its meeting at the home of Mrs. W. W. Louk, on Church street in Vienna; Mrs. W. W. Louk, Mrs. S. C. Stuntz, Mrs. John Ruff, Mrs. Carl Miller, Mrs. Oscar Miller, Mrs. Hugh Burke, Mrs. Mark Cockerill, Mrs. Howard Money, Mrs. G. A. Money, Mrs. Grath King, Mrs. Ira Miller, Mrs. A. W. Cook, Mrs. Frank Wilcox, Mrs. Bertha Greenwood. Plans will be made at this meeting to form the class into a permanent organization.

The Sharon Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, at McLean, will hold its regular meeting this evening in the Masonic Hall at McLean. Delegates to the State convention in Richmond last week will make their report at this time.

The Merrifield Improvement Association will hold its meeting this evening at the home of Mrs. D. N. Carleton in Merrifield.

The baseball championship of Fairfax County high schools will be decided in a series of three games between the teams from the Clifton and Lee-Jackson High Schools. These games will be played in the Fairfax County Fair Grounds at Fairfax. The first of the series will take place this afternoon under the supervision of Miss Dorothy Otley, principal of the Clifton School, and Miss Agnes Donaldson, of Lee-Jackson. The other two games will be played on Wednesday and Friday afternoons.

The Northwest Citizens Association of the Town of Falls Church will hold a meeting tonight at the home of Mrs. Nora Eberhardt, on Park avenue near Little Falls street, in Falls Church.

The final classes of the Standard Sunday School Teachers training course, which is being held in the Columbia Baptist Church in Falls Church, will be held this week. The first class will be held this evening, with the other classes on Wednesday and Friday evening. It is reported that more than 30 students are registered as taking the courses offered. The regular midweek prayer service of the Baptist Church, on Wednesday night of this week, has been canceled.

Owner Learns Car Loss From Police

Four-Mile Chase Brings Recovery Before Theft Is Known.

Recovery of an automobile belonging to D. S. Sanford, of Potomac street northwest, Washington, before the owner knew it had been stolen was the result of an exciting chase of more than four miles along the Lee Highway by Officer Roger Orrison when he overtook and arrested Walter Weaver, colored, of Falls Church.

Weaver was taken to the Arlington County Jail, where a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor was lodged against him. When asked for his drivers permit, police stated, Weaver admitted he had stolen the car. A second charge of having stolen property in his possession was then placed against him.

Washington police awakened Sanford and informed him that his car had been stolen and was at the Arlington County Jail. Weaver will be given a hearing today before Judge Harry R. Thomas.

Woman Is Killed In Car Collision

Three Other Persons Hurt as Automobiles Crash at Locust Grove.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 17 (A.P.).—Mrs. Charles Snyder, 27, of Sparrows Point, Md., was killed and three other persons were injured in an automobile collision shortly after noon today at Locust Grove, Orange County.

Alvin Snyder, 4-year-old son of Mrs. Snyder, received cuts about the face; Charles Dietrick, 12, had his left leg broken, and Oliver Smith, of Portsmouth, chauffeur of the other car involved in the accident, had his left hand almost severed. Smith's employer, Norman R. Hamilton, publisher of the Portsmouth Star, escaped without injury, as did Glenn McKin, of Baltimore, and Robert Dietrick, 8, also occupants of Mrs. Snyder's car.

Woman's School Head's Wife Dies at Richmond

Richmond, Va., May 17 (A.P.).—Mrs. Dice R. Anderson died unexpectedly in a hospital here early this afternoon. She had an operation two weeks ago and was thought to be convalescing when the sudden turn for the worse came. She died before Dr. Anderson, her husband, who was summoned from Lynchburg, Va., could reach her side.

Dr. Anderson, now president of Randolph Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, recently was named as president of Wesleyan University, where he is to take up his duties next session. Mrs. Ada James Ash Anderson was a native of White City, Kans., and was married to Dr. Anderson in 1903.

TREE DRIVE PLANNED BY ARLINGTON GROUP

Bicentennial Council Will Distribute Bulletin in County.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Plans for distribution of the Department of Agriculture bulletin on trees and shrubs suitable for planting in the Piedmont section of which Arlington County is a part will be principal business before the subcommittee on information and publicity of the Arlington Bicentennial Council at its meeting Wednesday evening in the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce rooms in the Kelly Building, at Clarendon.

The bulletin has been revised at the request of the Arlington County Bicentennial Council for use in preparation for the celebration next year. It groups the trees and shrubs according to ultimate height and gives for each plant data concerning its habit of growth, time of bloom, color of flower, fruit or foliage and other characteristics, which will enable the home owner to make an intelligent selection of plant material.

This bulletin may be obtained by writing to the Department of Agriculture or telephoning or calling in person at the headquarters of the Bicentennial Council, Kelly Building, Clarendon.

The subcommittee on information and publicity consists of A. J. Webb, chairman; N. Rex Hunt, C. Sorenson, D. R. Luttrell, John Smithfield, Arthur Orr, Mrs. J. S. Moran, J. L. Zile and O. J. Schuster.

Thermah Butler was arrested in South Washington at an early hour yesterday morning by Deputy Sheriff Harry L. Woodyard and Officer Roger Orrison on a charge of transporting liquor. He was taken to the county jail and will be given a hearing today before Judge Thomas.

Paul Campbell, 8 years old, of Lyon Park, narrowly escaped serious injury when, according to police, he stepped in front of an automobile operated by J. G. Smith, of Washington, on Wilson boulevard, near Clarendon, Saturday evening.

The boy was taken to the Georgetown Hospital, Washington, by F. T. Winfield where it was found he had sustained a broken leg. Investigation by Officers Vernon Wilt and Roger Orrison revealed that it was an unavoidable accident and no arrest resulted.

Mrs. S. S. Simmerman, of Country Club Hills, Arlington County, well-known soloist, will sing over radio station WMAL as part of Washington Art Gallery program Monday evening, May 25, at 10 o'clock.

The executive committee of the Creative Arts Club of Arlington County, will meet tonight at the home of the president, Mrs. Sade Catherine Coles, 62 Preston avenue, Cherrydale.

County Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green announces that he, or his deputies, will be at the Ballston Firemen's Hall tomorrow night from 7 to 9 o'clock, to assist taxpayers in that section in making out their tax returns.

Commissioner Green states that all persons over 21 years of age must make a return either in person or by agent, on or before June 1. He further stated that he will visit other sections of the county on dates to be announced later.

Members of the Men's Club of St. George's Episcopal Church are invited to be guests of the Men's Club of the Ballston Presbyterian Church at their meeting at the church Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Thomas R. Mechem, of Ashton Heights, announces himself candidate for membership on the county board which replaces the present board of supervisors next January 1 in accordance with the new county government. The election will be held November 3. Mr. Mechem is a member of the Arlington County Democratic committee and vice president of the Ashton Heights Citizens' Association.

The Lyon Park Woman's Club will hold its monthly business meeting at the Community House Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

The Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night with the Herndon Fire Department.

There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Stonewall Jackson School at the home of Mrs. Reeves, Bon Air, tonight.

Election of officers of the Ballston Council, No. 20, Daughters of America, will be principal business at a meeting tomorrow night in the auditorium of the Ballston Firemen's Hall.

Democratic Club Backs Liquor Plan

Richmond Group Supports Raskob's Home Rule; Hits Prohibition.

Richmond, Va., May 17 (A.P.).—The Riverside Democratic Social Club, which has a membership of several hundred voters and is the only permanent political club now functioning in Richmond, today forwarded to John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, resolutions passed at the club's May meeting indorsing the proposed "home-rule plan" for liquor control.

Included in the resolutions is the statement "that the prohibition laws instituted in this country have been given a fair and earnest trial, are hereby declared to be utter failures from the ideas originally entertained by those millions of good citizens who truly voted their sentiments thereon, and it is further declared to be the desire that hurried and immediate relief be granted our country from this curse."

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Society Awaits Davis Cup Play Last of Month

Horse Show Over, Tennis Matches Will Claim Interest Here.

KING HORSE has had his day—as far as Washington is concerned, at any rate—and the attention of the sporting world is now focused on the forthcoming Davis Cup matches, when tennis fans from the Capital and elsewhere will gather at the Chevy Chase Club May 28, 29 and 30 to witness the exhibition.

Members of the American team are scheduled to arrive in Washington next Monday or Tuesday and, while no program has been made as yet for their entertainment, several informal dinners to be given by members of the young married group are "in the making."

Junior League matrons, assisted by a number of girls under auspices of the league, have charge of the tickets, boxes and booths, where soft drinks and other refreshments will be dispensed on the afternoons of the matches. Adding touch of color to the scene, the girls serving will appear in the costumes of maids. The booths will be attractively decorated in the club colors—red and black.

Mrs. Lawrence Baker, whose husband is chairman of the tennis committee at the club, is in charge of the sale of tickets, assisted by Miss "Kitsie" Dunlop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Thomas Dunlop.

Mrs. John J. Whelan and Mrs. Eugene Smith are in charge of decorations and Mrs. Sidney Thomas, Mrs. Winslow Van Devanter, Mrs. Donald McKnew, Mrs. Theodore Noyes, jr., and Mrs. Carl R. Kurtz are managing the booths, where a group of pretty girls will be on duty each day.

If one can judge from last year's attendance at the matches, then officials, diplomats and practically "every one" will assemble at the club for one day—or all. And, incidentally, there are many tennis devotees in the ranks of diplomacy.

The British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, plays a first-rate game, and towering above his opponents, awes many into submission by the very length of his reach. The Swedish Minister, Mr. Bostrom, is a quondam champion, and still displays skill on the courts.

Other enthusiasts are the Minister og Czechoslovakia, Mr. Veverka; Col. Pat Day, of the British Embassy; Count di Gropello, of the Italian Embassy, and Maj. George Thenault, of the French Embassy.

Additional Sponsors For Festival Chosen.

Additional sponsors are announced for the annual children's festival on Saturday afternoon at Wilson Stadium, Florida avenue and Thirteenth street, when "The Wizard of Oz" will be given as an outdoor spectacle by hundreds of Washington boys and girls from all sections of the city.

The sponsors include Mrs. Jere J. Crane, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Mrs. John C. Gotwals, Mrs. James Henry Harper, State director of the Children of the American Revolution, Mrs. H. Barrett Learned, Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt and Mrs. Eugene Meyers.

The directors of the festival, headed by Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, will be assisted by a group of aids, among whom are Miss Winfred Seas, Miss Neenah Felton, Miss Margaret Becker, Miss Esther Jenkins, Miss Dorothy Cissel, Miss Elsie Barber, Miss Wilhelmina Cronenberg, Miss Anna Talbert, Mrs. Leslie Fox, Mrs. Vera Robert Shaw, Miss Virginia Schumucker, Miss Virginia Cooper, Miss Betty Jeffers, Miss Reba Will, Mrs. Mart, Mrs. Gertrude Hurley, Mrs. Douglas and Miss Ida Larkin.

Mrs. A. C. Driscoll is chairman of hospitality for "The Wizard of Oz" and Mrs. A. L. Irving is chairman of tickets. The performance will take place at 5 o'clock.

Louis Scherer Is Married to Miss Hammer

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Hammer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Valdemar T. Hammer, to Mr. Louis C. Scherer, son of Mrs. Louis C. Scherer, of Washington, and the late Col. Scherer, took place Saturday in Branford, Conn., home of the bride's parents, with the Rev. Benjamin Bacon officiating.

Miss Adelaide Hartpence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Leon Hartpence, of Old Hartford Turnpike, was maid of honor and Miss Lois Jameson was the other bridal attendant. Mr. George Fulford Scherer, Yale '27, was his brother's best man. Ushers included Lieut. Harris Scherer, brother of the bridegroom, and Lieut. Charles Barth, both of West Point; Mr. Donald Tobin, of New York, and Mr. Valdemar T. Hammer jr., brother of the bride.

The bride, who is a member of the New Haven Junior League, was graduated from Miss Masters' School, at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. Mr. Scherer was a member of the class of 1921 at Groton School and was graduated in 1925 for the United States Military Academy. He received a degree for post graduate work at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1928 and also served in the United States Army.

Mr. Jay Pierrepont Moffat, who has been serving as First Secretary at the American Legation in Berne, Switzerland, will come to Washington for temporary duty at the State Department around the first of July. He is coming in connection with the formation of the American secretariat for for the general disarmament conference, which will meet next February.

It is not known whether Mrs. Moffat will acompany him to this country. She was formerly Miss Lilla C. Grew, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Turkey and Mrs. Grew.

Mr. and Mrs. Gist Blair will close their house on Pennsylvania avenue around the first of June and go to Bar Harbor, where they will spend the summer season.

Mrs. Sidney Tallaferro will sail for Scotland the middle of June and will go to Glasgow to visit her mother, Mrs. Thomas Fulton. Later, with Mrs. Tallaferro's sister, Miss Ella Fulton, who lives in London, the two will take a cottage in the south of England for several weeks. In mid-August, Mrs. Tallaferro will rejoin Mr. Tallaferro, one-time District Commissioner, in Washington.

Spring Colors Mark Wedding At Alexandria

Groves-McKnight Nuptials Held Saturday at Old Home.

A pretty wedding took place Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at 623 South Fairfax street, Alexandria, the home of Miss Myrtle Graves and Miss Lucy Graves, when their niece, Miss Asenath Libby Graves, daughter of Capt. Herbert C. Graves and Mrs. Clara E. Graves, of Washington, became the wife of Mr. Edwin Thor McKnight, of Seattle, Wash. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Allen F. Poor, of Waugh Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington.

The old home of the bride's paternal grandparents was beautifully decorated, the wide stairway having white ribbon entwined the length of the bannister, ending in a huge bow, and in the rooms either side of the hall and mantels were banked with evergreens, lilac and different colored tulips. In the parlor—where the ceremony was performed—yellow tulips were used, while the end of the room was banked with tall palms, one of the group being a palm that was given to the bride's mother on the occasion of her marriage more than 30 years ago. An improvised altar was arranged before which the bridal party stood.

Preceding the ceremony a program of music was given, with Mr. Willard Graves McGraw, of Gaithersburg, Md., a cousin of the bride, at the piano, Miss Grace Powell, violinist, and Mrs. Stephen H. Field and Miss Lucy M. Graves, vocalists, gave selections. The wedding marches were played by Mr. McGraw.

The bride entered the room with her brother, Mr. H. Walter Graves, of Philadelphia, who gave her in marriage. Her gown was of eggshell satin, with court train, and a tulle veil of eggshell tint trimmed with old family princess lace. She wore lace mitts and carried an arm bouquet of Calla lilies.

Mrs. Arthur Alan Baker, of Washington, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, gowned in peach-colored chiffon with sand lace hat, mitts and slippers, and her bouquet was an old-fashioned one of spring flowers.

Little Miss Nancy Cuchman Graves, of Wayne, Pa., niece of the bride, was a dainty flower girl in a corn-colored silk frock, with a basket of spring flowers. She preceded the bride down the stairway, strewing rose petals in her path.

The bridegroom had as his best man Mr. Carle H. Dane, of Washington. After a motor trip South, Mr. and Mrs. McKnight will pass the summer in the West, as Mr. McKnight is connected with the Geological Survey.

The ceremony was followed by a reception, the bride's mother, Mrs. Clara E. Graves, receiving with them, wearing a gown of black chiffon velvet with a shoulder corsage of orchids.

Among out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Graves and Mrs. Dayton T. Moore, of Saco, Me.; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Graves and Mr. and Mrs. H. Walter Graves, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Sidney Cloman will return to Washington the middle of the week from Louisville, Ky., where she went with Mrs. George T. Marye and Mrs. Charles B. Howry to attend the Derby.

Miss Wright to Be Wed To Mr. Davis in Fall.

The engagement of Miss Elizabeth H. Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Taylor Wright, to Mr. Channing O. Davis, son of Dr. Mark O. Davis, was announced at a tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Wright at their home on Saturday afternoon.

Assisting Mrs. Wright were Mrs. Harry Carson, Miss Roberta Wright, Miss Louise Evans, Miss Helen Drew, Miss Peggy Padgett, Miss Marjorie Keim, Miss Julia Wayland and the Misses Jane and Helen Henderson.

The wedding will take place in the early fall.

Mrs. Perry Heath and her brother, Mr. Edwin B. Conway, will leave Washington Thursday, preparatory to sailing Friday from New York on the Conte Grande to spend the summer in France and Switzerland.

Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, wife of Senator Keyes, has gone to Ottawa to pass a week as the guest of Capt. and Mrs. George Black. Capt. Black is Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons.

New York Girl Becomes Bride Of Mr. Bonsal

Miss Lois Worrall Wed to Former Capital Resident.

Miss Lois Abbott Worrall, daughter of Mrs. Walter L. Worrall, of New York, was married Saturday to Mr. Dudley Baldwin Bonsal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bonsal, of Washington, in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York. The Rev. Dr. H. Adye Prichard, rector of St. Mark's Church, Mount Kisco, N. Y., and canon of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, performed the ceremony before a bower of cybotium ferns and dogwood blossoms.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Walter L. Worrall. She wore a gown of ivory satin made with a square neck and tight-fitting sleeves. Her long train was draped from the waist. She wore a veil of tulle, which fell from a cap of the same material. She carried lilies-of-the-valley with a single white orchid.

Miss Anne Worrall was her sister's maid of honor. She wore yellow chiffon with a bolero of the same material, and a large hat of yellow straw. She carried yellow iris and blue delphinium.

The bridesmaids were Miss Constance Worrall, another sister; Miss Margaret Worrall, a cousin, and Miss Evelyn Whitehouse, all of New York, and Miss Eleanor Gibson, of Boston. Their gowns were of French blue chiffon and they wore matching hats. They carried yellow snapdragons, pansies and sweet peas.

Mr. Stephen Bonsal, jr., was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Messrs. Howard M. Chapin, Gerard Swope, jr., and E. Aldrich Kniffin, all of New York, and Charles W. Bartlett and Lawrence H. Martin, of Boston.

A reception took place in the ballroom suite at Sherry's, where the couple received in the green room before a screen of cybotium ferns and smilax.

After their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Bonsal will live in New York.

Dr. Charles A. Richmond, chancellor emeritus of Union University, will be guest of honor and speaker at the Arts Club tomorrow evening. His subject will be "Scottish Border Ballads," and he will sing some of them to the accompaniment of the old Scottish harp.

Miss Anne B. Peebles will be hostess.

Dr. and Mrs. William A. Hulse, of Bay Shore, Long Island, are spending about a week in Washington, stopping at Wardman Park Hotel.

College Club Officers Gather at Luncheon.

The officers of the middle Atlantic province of the National Federation of College Catholic Clubs met at luncheon yesterday at Wardman Park Hotel. Among the members present of the Newman Club of George Washington University, the chapter of the federation here, were Miss Mary Kerwin, president; Mrs. Wilbur McNallin, vice president; Mr. Joseph L. O'Connor, first vice chairman of the province; Mr. Lawrence Gage and Mr. Harry Stathem. Among the other guests were Mr. John P. Smith, of New York University, president of the province; Miss Mary Knowles, University of Pennsylvania, secretary; Mr. Joseph F. Van Horn, University of Pennsylvania, treasurer; the Rev. John W. Keogh, of Philadelphia, national chaplain, and Mr. Leo A. Redmond, jr., of the Drexel Institute, national chairman.

Mrs. Copeland Jones was hostess to a company at luncheon at the Shoreham on Saturday, the party being the last in a series of festivities preceding her departure for her new home in St. Paul, Minn.

Guests were Mrs. William Gower, Miss Grace Little, Mrs. Kenneth Jacob, Miss Louise Williams, Miss Helen Stout, Dr. Clara Little, Mrs. Philip Terrill, Miss Laura Reeves, Miss Felicia Reeves, Mrs. Henry Seideman, Miss Arline Dufour, Mrs. Helen Martell, Miss Helen Drake, Miss Alvian Carroll, Miss Alice Hutchinson Drake, Mrs. Walter K. Miss Robbins Is Wedded at Cedar Rapids

Thomas C. Yarnall Marries Daughter of Coolidge War Official.

Of interest to Washington is the marriage of Miss Anna Marrella Robbins, daughter of Col. Charles B. Robbins, Assistant Secretary of War in the Coolidge administration, to Mr. Thomas Coffin Yarnall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Yarnall, jr. The wedding took place Saturday evening at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where the Robbins family has resided since Col. Robbins gave up his duties in Washington.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Robert Little in the presence of relatives and friends from New York, Washington, Pittsburgh and Chicago. A large reception and supper at the Cedar Rapids Country Club followed. Mr. Yarnall and his bride will reside in Cedar Rapids.

Mrs. Yarnall was presented to Capital society about two years ago. She is a granddaughter of William Larrabee, former Governor of Iowa, and attended Miss Wilfard's School and Iowa University. She is a graduate of Vassar. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

Lieut. Comdr. Ovid C. Foote Entertains at Shoreham.

AIMEE IS GREETED BY BANDS, CHEERS

Los Angeles Crowds Accord Returned Evangelist Noisy Ovation.

Los Angeles, May 17 (A.P.).—Showered with flowers while bands played and a throng of several thousand sang, cheered and called greetings, Aimee Semple McPherson returned to Angelus Temple at 5 p. m. yesterday from a trip around the world.

"Oh, how I love you," the beaming apostle of the four-square gospel called to the multitude after she, her daughter Roberta, Roberta's recently acquired husband, William Bradley Smythe, and Mrs. McPherson's son Rolf had been escorted down a rose-strewn lane from their railroad coach to a gayly decked flat car.

"And how we love you, too," some one cried, signaling a renewal of tumultuous cheering.

Thirty policemen formed the aisle between the press of people to the flat car, and the city's official welcome was extended in a talk by City Councilman J. C. Barthel, speaking for Mayor John C. Porter.

Mrs. McPherson's mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, was not present, either at the station where the McPherson party arrived from New York or at the continuance of the celebration at Mrs. McPherson's home and in Angelus Temple. It was announced Mrs. Kennedy had gone to her beach cottage for the day, explaining her physical condition would not permit her to participate in the excitement.

The evangelist dismissed the absence with the statement that "family affairs should not be discussed in public."

Mrs. McPherson and her mother have been at odds over temple affairs for some time. She denied a report that Rolf was to marry a Bible student at Angelus, Lorena Smith. "I wasn't dictatorial about it," she said. "I merely suggested that Rolf wait until he is 21."

The evangelist's new son-in-law was purser aboard the liner on which the McPherson party sailed for the Orient.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agri. Weather Bureau. Washington, Sunday, May 17, 8 p. m.—For the District of Columbia—Fair Monday; Tuesday increasing cloudiness and warmer, probably local thundershowers Tuesday afternoon or night; gentle east, shifting to south winds.

For Maryland and Virginia—Fair Monday; Tuesday increasing cloudiness and warmer, probably local thundershowers Tuesday afternoon or night; moderate east, shifting to south winds.

Pressure remains low from Huron Strait southeastward to the Canadian Maritime Provinces, Harrington, Que., 29.30 inches, and it is relatively low over Virginia and the Carolinas, Raleigh, 29.82 inches. The western disturbance now extends from Saskatchewan southeastward to Iowa and thence southwestward to Colorado and New Mexico, Battleford, Sask., 29.20, and Sioux City, Iowa, 29.38 inches. Pressure remains low also over Yukon and the interior of Alaska. Pressure is high over the north Pacific States and the northern Plateau region, North Head, Wash., 30.46 inches, and from extreme northern Alaska southeastward to northern Hudson Bay, Point Barrow, 30.24 inches, and it is relatively high over the lower Lake region, and from Florida northeastward to Bermuda, Hamilton, Bermuda, 30.08 inches. There have been showers within the last 24 hours from Indiana eastward to the middle Atlantic and southern New England coasts, and from the north Pacific coast eastward to Minnesota. Elsewhere fair weather has prevailed. The temperature has fallen from the upper Ohio Valley and the lower Lake region eatward to the Atlantic Coast, and from the western Canadian Provinces southward over the northern Plateau and northern Rocky Mountain regions, the Dakotas, and northern Minnesota, and it has not changed materially elsewhere.

The indications are for generally fair weather in the Washington forecast district Monday, and in the South Atlantic States and New England Tuesday, but the western disturbance will likely cause local showers Tuesday or Tuesday night in Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region, the Middle Atlantic States, and eastern New York. The temperature will rise in the upper Ohio Valley and the lower Lake region Monday and Tuesday, and in the Middle Atlantic States and the interior of the North Atlantic States during Tuesday.

YEARS OF GRACE

By MARGARET AYER BARNES

it sooner if she hadn't been thinking so intently of the joys in store for her.

"You're very late," said Isabel.

Jane sat down and unfolded her napkin. Minnie passed the ham. No one said anything more for a moment. The silence was very forbidding.

"Jane," said her mother presently, "where did you get the book that I found on your table this morning?"

Jane dropped her knife and fork. She was extremely surprised.

"What—what book?" she asked, instinctively playing for time.

"That French book," said her mother, and her tone spoke volumes.

Jane stared at her in silence.

"Where on earth did you find it?" asked Isabel.

Jane's great brown eyes turned on her sister.

"Answer mother, Jane." The tone brooked no delay. Jane's eyes returned to the head of the table.

"From—from Andre," she said. Her voice, in her own ears, sounded strangely husky.

"Andre!" said her mother, staring at Isabel. "That explains it."

"You don't mean to say," said Isabel, "that Andre gave you that book?"

"Yes," said Jane with difficulty.

"What for?" said her mother. The last word was really almost a shriek.

"To—to read," said Jane.

Isabel and her mother exchanged a glance of horror.

"Well—honestly—" said Isabel.

"Have you read it?" asked her mother.

"No," said Jane. Her ear caught their little gasps of relief. She didn't understand at all. She only knew that she and Andre and their perfect plan were in some dreadful danger. She must try to explain.

"He's going to give it in his theater, mamma," she went on hurriedly. "He wants me to help him. He wants me to make the costumes. We're going——"

Her mother and Isabel exchanged another glance of horror.

Her mother smiled at her very kindly.

"Nothing has happened, Jane. I'm very glad you haven't read the book. It's not at all a nice book for a child to read. But we'll return it to Andre today. You needn't think anything more about it."

"But mamma!" cried Jane, "you—you can't do that! Why—why, we've made all our plans—I was going over there this afternoon—we've almost finished the first set—he——"

"It doesn't make any difference what you've done, Jane," said her mother firmly, "or what you've planned. It's not a nice book for a little girl to read and——"

"Have you read it?" asked Jane, rudely. And she meant to be rude. She knew her mother couldn't read French. Isabel herself couldn't read it half as well as Jane could.

"You don't have to read books, Jane," said her mother with dignity, "to know that they shouldn't be read. This book is very unpleasant."

"Why, it's notorious" said Isabel.

Jane felt very confused.

"If you haven't read it, mamma," she said reasonably, "don't you think that perhaps you've made a mistake? Andre's mother saw him give it to me. She's going to help with the play."

She saw at once that she hadn't helped her cause at all.

"French people," said her mother, once more with dignity, "don't feel about these things the way we do. They have very different ideas of right and wrong."

"Andre's mother is English," said Jane sullenly.

"She married a Frenchman," said Isabel, as if that settled it.

"We won't discuss it further," said Jane's mother. "Eat your lunch."

"Mamma!" cried Jane in desperation. "You don't understand. I—I can't go back on Andre! I can't——"

"Jane," said her mother. "You will eat your lunch. And then you will call up Andre and tell him that you can't have anything to do with the play and that you can't go over there this afternoon. I'll send Minnie over with the book. I don't want you to go over to Andre's any more at all. You've been seeing far too much of him lately. Any boy that would give a little girl a book like that——"

But Jane had sprung to her feet.

"I won't eat my lunch!" she cried. "And I won't call up Andre! I think you're too mean! You don't understand! You don't understand anything!" Her voice was breaking. She wouldn't cry before them! She rushed from the room.

"It's a long time," she heard her mother say, as she reached the door, "since Jane has had a tantrum."

She stumbled up the stair. She gained the refuge of her bedroom and banged the door. The book was gone. She couldn't go to Andre's. She couldn't help him with that play. She flung herself on her bed in stormy tears.

It wasn't very long before the door opened and Isabel entered, without a knock. Jane lay very still and tried to hush her sobs.

"Don't be silly, Kid," said Isabel. She sat down on the bed.

"Don't talk to me," said Jane.

"Stop crying," said Isabel reasonably, "and be sensible."

There was a little pause.

"That's a dreadful play, Jane," said Isabel.

Jane didn't reply.

"Sarah Bernhardt does it," said Isabel. "She's an awful woman."

Jane lay very still.

"When she was here," said Isabel, "none of us girls were allowed to see her. She's not nice."

Jane sat up. Andre's reverent accents still rang in her ears.

"She has beautiful hair," thought Jane, "golden brown—and frizzy."

"What do you mean by 'not nice?'" she inquired indignantly.

Isabel's face looked a little queer. She was watching her younger sister rather curiously.

"Immoral," said Isabel finally.

"I don't believe it," said Jane, after a moment.

"Oh, yes, she is," said Isabel easily. "Every one knows that."

Jane stared, unconvinced. Isabel was still looking at her in that funny way.

"Don't you know what I mean?" said Isabel.

There was an awful pause. Jane wasn't sure that she did. But it sounded dreadful.

"I—don't—believe—it," said Jane slowly. "Andre said——"

"French people are different," said Isabel. "They don't mind things like that."

"They're not different!" said Jane. But of course she knew that they were. Not different like that, though. Whatever it was, if it were true, Andre couldn't know it.

"Now, don't be silly, Jane," said Isabel once more. "Minnie's keeping your lunch. Go down and eat it and then telephone Andre and tell him."

"I can't tell him!" wailed Jane.

"Well—you can tell him something," said Isabel plausibly. "You can tell him that Mamma doesn't want you to stay indoors on such a bright afternoon."

"Do you want me to lie to him?" said Jane.

"Well, Jane!" Isabel was actually laughing. "You wouldn't tell him the truth, would you?"

"I won't lie to Andre," said Jane. "Besides, Mamma—"

"Oh, Mamma'll get over it. She won't care what you say as long as you don't go."

The door opened again. Jane's mother stood on the threshold.

"Don't be silly, Jane," she said.

Jane wiped her eyes.

"Go down and eat your lunch!" She patted Jane very nicely on the shoulder. They all turned toward the door.

"Isabel," said her mother, halfway down the hall, "I can't find that book anywhere. I left it on my desk."

"Oh!" said Isabel, and her voice sounded a bit confused. "It's in my room. I started to bring it downstairs for you."

Jane looked through Isabel's door. There was the little yellow volume on the sofa, with Jane's own French dictionary beside it. Jane despised Isabel, for a moment. Her mother picked up the volume gingerly as if it burned her fingers.

"I never expected to see," she said, "a paper-covered French book in this house."

"All French books have paper covers," Jane began. Andre had told her that. But of course it was no use. She didn't go on with it. Instead she went down stairs and tried to eat her lunch at the pantry table beneath the telephone, thinking of what she had better say to Andre.

He answered the call himself. She knew his voice immediately. His funny telephone voice, trickling so miraculously into her ear, when he was four long city blocks away.

"Hello, Jane," he said.

She didn't waste any time on preliminaries.

"I can't come over," she said miserably.

"Why not?" said Andre.

Jane gulped a little before she could reply.

"Mamma—Mamma—" she began weakly. How could she tell him?

"I don't hear, you" said Andre.

"Mamma," said Jane desperately. She couldn't tell him. "Mamma wants me to play out of doors—it's such a nice day."

"Oh," said Andre. He sounded very sorry. "Well—perhaps we could take a walk by the lake."

Jane fell a prey to panic. This was what always happened when you lied.

"I—I can't," she said very quickly. "I—I'm going over to Flora's."

"Oh," said Andre. And his voice sounded just a little queer.

"We—are going to play in her yard," said Jane.

"I see," said Andre.

"I—I'll see you tomorrow," said Jane.

He didn't answer.

"Won't I?" asked Jane, pitifully.

"Oh, yes," said Andre. "Yes—I'll be waiting."

"Well, good-by," said Jane.

"Good-by," said Andre. "I'm awfully sorry."

Jane hung up the receiver. She felt perfectly miserable. She had lied to Andre. She despised Isabel, yet she'd taken her advice. And he hadn't believed her at all. He had known she was lying. Jane was plunged in despair. Well—at least she could go over to Flora's. She could make that lie come true.

Flora's front door was opened by Flora's butler. Jane always felt a little uneasy with butlers, but she knew this one very well. He had been with the Furnesses for years.

"Miss Flora is upstairs," he said. All Flora's servants called her "Miss Flora." It was very impressive. At home every one said just "Jane."

Jane walked very softly down Flora's hall, skirting the black walnut furniture with care. The floor was very slippery and the tiger skin before the fireplace snarled with its "papier-mache" jaws and glared with its yellow glass eyes in a very realistic manner.

Jane ran upstairs to Flora's bedroom.

Flora wasn't doing much of anything. Jane explained that she had come to play in the yard. Flora said that was fine. Muriel was coming over and they could go out to the playhouse.

The playhouse was a tiny structure out near the stable, the scene of their childish frolics. They didn't use it to play in now, of course, but Flora sometimes made candy on the little cooking-stove and she and Jane and Muriel always liked to talk there undisturbed.

"We'll make fudge," said Flora.

"Mamma wants me to be out-of-doors," said Jane, still trying to make that lie come true.

"We'll leave the windows open," said Flora.

Jane began to feel much better as soon as she measured out the chocolate and sugar. She thought she could explain to Andre tomorrow morning. She thought he would understand. Mothers were mothers. You weren't responsible for what they thought or what they made you do.

Flora's fire began to burn almost immediately. The scent of cooking chocolate permeated the air. Muriel's pink muslin had come from Hollander's. It had real lace on the bertha. She was going to have some high-heel slippers.

"Hello!" said Flora suddenly. "There's Andre."

There was Andre, indeed, loitering a little aimlessly by the iron fence. Muriel immediately began to giggle. Jane rushed to the playhouse door.

"Yoo-hoo, Andre!" she called ecstatically. "Come on over!"

He vaulted the fence at a bound. Jane ran out to meet him.

"Oh, Andre," she said, "I'm terribly glad you came!"

He looked pleased, but he didn't say anything.

"Andre! Do you like fudge?" shrieked Flora from the doorway.

"You bet," said Andre. Muriel went right on giggling. Jane walked with Andre into the playhouse. How good the chocolate smelled! Jane felt she liked fudge as never before.

She told him all about it an hour later. He was walking home with her down Erie street, in the last red rays of the October sun. It was awfully hard to lead up to it. Suddenly she took the plunge.

"I—I'm afraid I can't do 'Camille' with you, Andre," she said.

He stopped quite still on the pavement.

"Why not?" he asked.

Jane felt her cheeks growing very hot and red.

"Mamma—mamma doesn't want me to," she said.

"Why not?" asked Andre again.

Jane looked miserably away from him.

"She—she doesn't like the play."

Andre looked extremely astonished.

"Why," he said finally, "she—must like it. Every one like's 'Camille.'"

"Mamma doesn't," said Jane. There it was. That was all there was to say.

"Do you mean to tell me," said Andre hotly, "that she won't let you do it?"

Jane nodded unhappily. Andre looked extremely puzzled.

"Well, then," he said finally, "I guess you can't."

Jane's heart leaped up with gratitude. He did understand. Mothers were mothers. But there was still the lie.

"Andre——" said Jane, and stopped.

"Yes?" said Andre. It was terribly difficult.

"Andre," said Jane again and her voice was very low. She couldn't look at him. "I—I didn't tell you the truth over the telephone."

Andre didn't say anything.

"Mamma didn't say I had to play out-of-doors this afternoon. I—I was scared to tell you what she really said."

"Why?" said Andre very seriously.

Jane felt her eyes fill with tears.

"Because," said Jane, and her lips were trembling. "I didn't know what you'd think of me."

Andre saw the tears. He looked awfully embarrassed, and terribly kind.

"That's all right, Jane," said Andre. She was smiling straight up at him through the tears. "I guess you know I'll always think one thing of you."

Jane was consumed in a flame of grateful happiness.

"Oh, Andre!" she breathed.

"Never mind 'Camille,'" said Andre, as they began walking again. "We can do something else."

Jane became suddenly conscious of the windows of her house. They stared down on Pine street.

"Perhaps—perhaps," she said guiltily, "you hadn't better come any further."

"Oh—all right," he said.

"See you tomorrow!" said Jane.

He waved his cap at her. Jane ran across the street and up the block. At her front steps she paused to look after him. He waved again. She felt terribly happy. She didn't mind about "Camille," now. No one could help mothers. And they would do something else.

(To be continued tomorrow.)

MITCHELL ON MONOPOLY.

Attorney General Mitchell has done well to reiterate the purposes of the antitrust laws at a time when there is a popular clamor for their amendment or repeal. The antitrust laws, he says, have a double purpose. By preserving competition they are intended to protect the consumer against exorbitant prices and to insure to the average individual freedom to engage in trade and commerce.

This check on monopoly is as important in times of depression as in periods of prosperity. People who are seeking a panacea for the restoration of better times grasp at anything which promises to unfetter business. The assult upon the antitrust laws is largely a fad based on the fallacy that no harm would come of giving big business free rein while it is down. For the moment the country seems to have forgotten the measure of protection which these laws have afforded to new enterprises and independent business organizations.

Last week the American Wholesale Grocers' Association met in New Orleans and passed a resolution favoring immediate amendment of the antitrust laws. What the association asks is a liberalization of the law "so as to permit agreements among business looking toward the elimination of discrimination and price cutting, and to authorize agreements to stabilize industry." This attitude is typical. The public is asked, in the interests of business recovery, to sacrifice the protection it enjoys by reason of enforced competition.

This request for "immediate" amendment of the antitrust laws coupled with the association's attitude on recent action of the Department of Justice suggests that what is actually desired is a weakening of the Attorney General's policy in prosecuting combinations that are restraining trade. Congress will not be in session until December. Therefore immediate amendment of the antitrust laws is impossible. It is highly improbable that any substantial changes will be made when Congress does reassemble.

Attorney General Mitchell wants it understood that in the meantime he has no authority to refrain from enforcement of the Sherman and Clayton acts because business is not prosperous. The Department of Justice, he says, is exercising peculiar care to see that no unjustified attack is made upon business during this critical period. Nevertheless, combinations in restraint of trade will be prosecuted.

Mr. Mitchell gave special attention in his radio address to the attempt of the oil industry to have the antitrust laws set aside for its special benefit. His conclusion after much thought is that "any measure which permits combinations to restrain production seems to lead to the necessity of protecting the public by governmental supervision of the combination, and that is a dubious proposal." It is a waste of time for the industry to consider the elimination of competition without at the same time preparing for Government regulation.

American business has grown up on the principle of competition, and there is no reason why it should not continue to expand upon that basis. So long as the Government protects industry from foreign competition, it is essential to the public interest that domestic producers compete with each other. The depression has in no way weakened the fundamental reasons why monopoly must be restrained.

RAILROAD RATES.

Railroad rates are undergoing a minute investigation to determine whether or not it is advisable to make adjustments with a view to increasing revenue. The investigation was ordered by the Association of Railway Executives after it had decided that something must be done to meet the emergency resulting from falling revenues. Indications are that when the study is completed the railroads will present themselves before the Interstate Commerce Commission and demand an increase in freight rates.

For a number of years the railroad executives of the country have faced the problem of declining revenues. They have pared expenses and increased efficiency. Their service has been made more attractive. But they have struggled against competition that is staggering. Buses, trucks, private automobiles, aircraft and pipelines have constantly encroached upon that field of service which once belonged almost exclusively to the railroads. Since the depression has also cut into their business, the railroads have come to the conclusion that their revenue must be increased.

Further curtailment of expenditures seems unjustified. Neither interest nor taxes can be cut. The outlay for supplies has been reduced to a minimum, and wages will not be cut, except as a last resort. This seems to mean that if the position of the railroads is to be improved, freight rates must be raised. It is calculated that railroad properties are earning only 2.07 per cent on their investments, while Congress allows them a return between 5½ and 6 per cent. The move to improve their financial position is unquestionably justified.

The question facing the railroads is not, however, whether higher freight rates are justified, but whether the situation can be improved by that method. The railroads calculate that rate reductions since 1920 have cost them $2,800,000,000. That, however, is a misleading estimate because it does not take into consideration how much business the carriers would have lost to their competitors if the reductions had not been made. The question of raising rates centers on how much traffic the railroads will lose by charging higher prices.

Executives are making a careful study to determine what rates can be raised without stimulating new competition from motor vehicles. The plan is said to contemplate lower rates for such commodities as cotton in the South because of the keen competition from truck lines, and oil in the Southwest, because of the impetus given to pipeline construction. A number of Western railroads have already made drastic cuts in their passenger rates in an endeavor to regain a larger share of the lucrative tourist traffic.

Nevertheless, it is an extremely delicate problem. Even if the increased rates are confined to those articles hauled almost exclusively by rail the result may be to stimulate new competition in those fields. This is especially true because the price of nearly all commodities is decreasing. The public will not pay higher freight rates if it can be avoided. Much capital is idle. If an opportunity for establishing additional motor transport service is presented, many will take advantage of it. Higher rates might result only in decreasing rail traffic and giving truck lines a boost without increasing railroad revenue. If the railroads are ready to risk this possibility of weakening themselves, they must be in a more desperate situation than the public has been led to suppose.

PROMISING TOO MUCH.

It has been suggested in these columns that the loss of popularity of Latin American presidents and not infrequently violent reaction against them often comes from their inability to carry out exaggerated promises made in the enthusiasm of the campaign, either electoral or revolutionary. Such now seems to be the case of President Uriburu of Argentina. He offered to do much more than was humanly possible to deliver.

The unfavorable effects of the world-wide depression were keenly felt last year in nearly all the South American republics, and Argentina was no exception. Dissatisfied elements hoped that miracles might be wrought through a change of government. Former President Irigoyen certainly appeared to be an apathetic executive, and the opposition leader was prodigal in his assurances of better things.

As the head of the revolution Gen. Uriburu promised to end unemployment within three months. He announced that he would increase prices for cereals and other agricultural products, and he pledged a restoration of par value to the peso. These were big undertakings, and in the eight months following his overthrow of the Irogoyen government he has not been able to consummate any one of them.

Efforts at monetary stabilization have resulted in a severe drain, withdrawing upward of 200,000,000 pesos from circulation and costing $75,000,000. General overproduction likewise prevented hoped-for improvement in prices, or in the labor situation. International conditions, which, of course, President Uriburu could not overcome, made it impossible for him to complete his program. He has been unable to balance the national budget, and is carrying on government expenditures on a month-to-month basis, while facing a heavy deficit.

All of these failures and the growing dissatisfaction with business conditions throughout the country might have been condoned as matters beyond executive control, if President Uriburu had pursued a political policy more in consonance with revolutionary reform after a regime that was widely accused of dictatorial methods and monopolization of political favors. He now appears to have fallen into similar errors, if not worse ones. By his cancellation of state elections that resulted unfavorably for his party, and by the further postponement of general elections, he has united all parties with even the more radical elements against him. The great popular acclaim with which President Uriburu was welcomed as chief executive has been dissipated to such an extent through his inability to perform impossible feats of economic reform and because of poor political judgment, that it is freely predicted that he will not be able to remain in office until the presidential elections, which he has postponed for another six months.

NO ARMY AIRSHIPS.

If the administration has decided to leave airship building exclusively to the Navy, as Senator Reed has intimated, the move will be generally approved as a step toward both economy and efficiency. The Navy is far ahead of the Army in this field of aeronautics. The dirigible airship Akron is almost ready for operation. It is the largest airship in the world, and in its construction all the tested ideas of Zeppelin experts have been embodied. The great hangar at Akron will soon be available for construction of a second Navy ship, and thereafter private enterprise is planning to build commercial ships containing 10,000,000 or even 12,000,000 cubic feet of helium.

All that the Army might do in constructing airships would be but a copy of what the Navy has already done. The naval airships will take their proper place in the scheme of national defense. It is not evident that Army airships are necessary, since the proper field of operations of these ships is over the sea. If transcontinental airship transport is coming, it will be best provided by private enterprise, following the path that the Navy has blazed. All private airships as well as cargo planes will be available for the Army in time of emergency.

The great cost of airships like the Akron and its projected successors ought to warn the administration against indulging in the extravagance of duplicate building and operating establishments. If airships are practical and desirable the Navy will prove the fact long before the Army could do so. If they are not, one set of experiments is enough.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., May 17.—A world conference on silver would do no harm and might do some good. Like so many other commodities silver has been cheapened by the increased use of machinery and invention in its production. This process has been going on for centuries. Obviously a metal that fluctuates so much in value is not well adapted to be used for a unit of value of money. But as a token of exchange it is exceedingly convenient. That use might possibly be increased. Some method of control similar to the proposed system for sugar may well be considered.

But all such plans are but temporary makeshifts. When too much human effort goes into producing one commodity we get what we call oversupply. We do not need to study that supply, for it is already ample. What we really need to study is how to produce more of other commodities by those who are now idle. The basic problem of the world is to draw off those people who have been engaged in overproduction into some form of new industry whose output can be exchanged for the present oversupply. A conference on that subject would be of fundamental importance.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

SPIRIT OF THE CHINESE

By LIN TUTANG in the China Critic.

As a people, we are great enough to draw up an imperial law-code, but we are also great enough to distrust lawyers and law courts. Ninety-five per cent of legal troubles are settled out of court. We are great enough to have elaborate rules of ceremony, but we are also great enough to treat them as part of the great joke of life. We are great enough to denounce vice, but we are also great enough not to be disturbed by it. We do not teach young people in the colleges a course in political science, describing how a government is supposed to be run, but we teach them by daily fact and example how our municipal, provincial and central governments are run actually. We have no use for impracticable idealism, as we have no patience for doctrinaire theology. We do not teach our young to become like the sons of God, but we teach them to be sane human beings. That is why I believe that Chinese are essentially humanists and Christianity must fail in China, or it must be altered beyond recognition before it can be accepted. The only part of Christian teachings that would stick in China is, I believe, Christ's injunction to be gentle like the doves, but also to be shrewd like the snakes. For these are the attributes of the old rogue.

In one word, we recognize the necessity of human effort, but we also admit the futility of it. This general attitude of mind has a tendency to develop passive defense tactics. "Great things can be changed into small things and small things can be changed into nothing." On this general principle, all Chinese quarrels are settled, all Chinese schemes are adjusted and all reform programs are discounted until there is peace and rice for everybody. "One move is not so good as one sitting still," so runs another of our proverbs, which means the same thing as "Let well enough alone," and "Let the sleeping dogs lie." Human life moves on, therefore, on the line of least struggle and least resistance. This develops a certain calmness of mind, which enables a man to swallow insults and find himself in harmony with the universe. It develops also certain passive defense tactics, which can be more terrible than any tactics of aggression. When you go to a restaurant and feel hungry, but the food will not come, you can repeat your orders to the boy. If the boy is rude, you can do something and complain to the management. But if the boy replies to you in the most elegant manner, "Coming, coming," and does not bring the food, you can absolutely do nothing except pray or curse in an elegant manner also. Such, in brief, is the passive strength of the Chinese people, a strength which those who are made to feel most will appreciate best. It is the strength of the old rogue.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE WOMAN WHO WAITED.

She heard his wife was dead. Long years ago
She might have smiled receiving such a word,
But now her once brown hair was tinged with snow,
Today her ancient fancy seemed absurd.

So long she'd waited since those sweetheart days
And that slight quarrel which had turned his head.
She'd often thought he might pick up old ways
Had something happened ere her youth had fled.

He had been happy. That, of course, she knew,
But through those 30 years she'd lived alone.
No other man to her had come to woo.
How drearily and slowly time had flown!

Now she was dead! In pity she would go
To carry comfort as old friends should do.

And seeing her perhaps he might recall
Some of the memories which had lived with her.
Was it a silly fancy, after all?
Sometimes these strange reunions do occur.

The Man Who Has No Capacity to Learn Is Mercifully Content With What He Knows.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WITH very few exceptions, every battle in history has been lost by unwhipped men.

People surrender too quickly because they do not realize how great their power of endurance is.

They give up hope too soon because they do not understand the scheme of nature that endows them with the ability to conquer.

Do you realize that the ability to feel a need is proof of the ability to supply it?

It is your latent power to solve a problem that enables you to realize that the problem exists.

A rabbit pursued by a fox might escape with little effort if it could fly. But it thinks only of reaching its burrow, and even the frenzy of desperation can not prompt it to attempt a new way of escape. It can not conceive of flight because it has no capacity for flight.

Yet there is abundant evidence that other creatures, pursued by a multitude of enemies, left the waters of their nativity and developed wings as a means of escape.

They were creatures incapable of reasoning. What prompted them to quit the water? What gave them faith to begin the long process of evolution that transformed them into birds?

It was their ability to develop that prompted them to do it. If there had been no need of development there would have been no capacity for it, and if there had been no capacity for development there would have been no ability to conceive of it.

Mr. Edison faced the problem of developing an electric light. Why did the problem present itself to him and not to some illiterate ditch digger? Because he alone had the power to solve it. It was the ability of the problem that enabled him to realize there was a problem to solve.

You have certain difficulties to overcome. Without those difficulties you would be unable to grow. Creatures without problems to solve must remain as they are. They have no capacity for growth because they have no need of it.

What makes you aware of the difficulties? You are aware of them because you have within you the power to overcome them.

Only the few have ability to solve the world's problems. The others, lacking that ability, are mercifully unaware that the problems exist.

It is nature's rule of growth.

If you can see the need of unselfishness, it is because you have grown big enough to be unselfish.

An Insurgent "Exploration."

(New Orleans Times Picayune.)

Republicans who have fallen out of love with the Hoover administration should be interested in Senator Brookhart's report on his efforts to organize an intraparty revolt against Mr. Hoover's renomination. Since he proposed such an undertaking, the Iowa senator tells us, he has been deluged with letters from fellow Republicans who share his desire to have somebody else nominated. In a number of States, his correspondents lead him to believe, the Republican presidential primaries can be carried against Mr. Hoover if the latter's opponents will organize and concentrate their support within their respective States upon some other candidate. Among the other presidential possibilities mentioned he lists Senators Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, Norris of Nebraska, La Follette of Wisconsin and Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania. Each of these gentlemen would develop strength in their own States and perhaps in others. Should they take the field and succeed in bringing to the primary polls all the "progressive" and other anti-Hoover Republican, Senator Brookhart expresses the belief that an anti-Hoover majority can be seated in the Republican National Convention.

A Question of Yardsticks.

Minneapolis Journal.

When they speak of the tariff's effect on agriculture, critics of the Republican party and its policies insist on measuring the farmer's buying power in terms of bushels of his most depressed product, wheat. But when the same critics discuss the tariff's effect on foreign trade, they insist on measuring imports and exports, not by volume, but by dollar value.

They measure the fruits of the tariff with one yardstick to "prove" that the farmer has been hurt rather than helped; they measure them with an entirely different yardstick to "prove" that America's foreign trade has suffered vastly because of the Hawley-Smoot increase in the height of the tariff breakwater that protects the country's shores from a tidal wave of European dumping.

Gunning for Moses.

Atlanta Constitution.

Reports in the Constitution's news correspondents from Washington bring information that a serious schism in the ranks of the Republican majority in the Senate is looming as the result of the desire of the Progressives to further "discipline" Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, for his "wild jackasses" statement of a year or so ago.

The milk in the coconut so far as this threat of renewed war within the G. O. P. is concerned is probably not that the insurgents are still rankling over the designation applied to them, but because of the power over committee assignments wielded by the wily old senator from New England, as the result of his occupancy of the office of president pro tempore of the Senate.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

President Campbell, of Civil Service Commission, Explains Milwaukee's Fine Law Enforcement Record.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post's recent editorial under the caption, "Milwaukee's Open Secret," was read with much interest in the office of the United States Civil Service Commission.

The editorial discusses the efficiency of the police force of Milwaukee and the comparative freedom of that city from crime.

The following is quoted from the editorial:

"It is simply because Milwaukee is a city that has an independent police force, organized to protect life and property, and free from interference by politicians. * * * Milwaukee has no laws against crime and criminals that are very different from those of other cities. The secret of Milwaukee's fine record lies in the fact that the laws are enforced fearlessly and promptly."

A phase of government in which Milwaukee is outstanding among American cities is the strength of its civil service law and the rigidity with which it is enforced. It is not a coincidence that the city which has one of the best civil service systems is one of the least attractive to criminals.

Practically all cities of importance in the United States have some sort of civil service law for their police and fire departments. It is notorious, however, that in many of our cities the civil service regulations are practically nullified by city administrations. In Milwaukee the case is different. The law is well conceived and well executed.

The United States Civil Service Commission has a natural interest in the application of the merit principle based on competitive examinations in State and local governments. The City of Milwaukee is to be congratulated upon its adherence to the merit principle and the results.

Plenty of Room for Reform in Illinois, Is Reminder to Decatur Critic of the South.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Reference is made to the comments of your Decatur, Ill., correspondent, in connection with child labor in the South.

Some few years past, when cotton mills were rapidly developing in the South, propaganda was put out by New England cotton mill owners to have national control of child labor. This was done as a slap at the South. When those mill owners awakened to the fact that United States control would affect their New England mills also, the same men took a hand in crushing the movement. The New England States have strict child labor laws, but it is a fact that they use more child labor than do the Southern States.

From the time the Pilgrims landed in New England their uppermost characteristic was meddling—consumed with the idea that it was their prerogative to regulate the whole world; and as these witch-burners emigrated westward they carried with them this obsession.

On the other hand, the Southern States have been content to regulate only their own affairs.

However, if the gentleman from Illinois feels that it is his special duty to regulate and improve to his liking, there is plenty to do and to comment upon in his own State.

From what knowledge I have regarding the history and present status of Illinois, there is precious little to brag about, and gentlemen will do well to limit castigations to their own locality.

Dangerous Grade Crossing Over New Mount Vernon Boulevard at Wilkes Street.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It has come to the notice of a committee of citizens of Alexandria, that the Bureau of Roads, U. S. Agricultural Department, has given the Southern Railroad permission to keep its dangerous railroad grade crossing at Wilkes street over the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway.

There is also in the highway bed a disappearing switch about 6 inches below the surface of the steel rail, and a siding starts there running 300 feet to the eastward. As long, heavy freight trains pass over this grade crossing each twenty-four hours it is a menace. These trains are made up of freight cars loaded with coal, fertilizers, sand, gravel, lumber and gasoline tank cars.

This is an extremely dangerous grade crossing, and we citizens of this city will sue in the U. S. Court, which convenes here on June 1, to eliminate the grade crossing. We think it will be a benefit to humanity, as the Mount Vernon Highway will be used each year by thousands of tourists and others. The land for the Mount Vernon Highway through Alexandria was deeded to the Federal Government by the Mayor and City Council of Alexandria.

FRENCH GAMING BAIT READY FOR VISITORS

Big Summer Is Expected by Enghien-Les-Bains, Near Paris.

Enghein-Les-Bains, France, May 17 (A.P.).—The inhabitants of this small health resort, 6 miles from Paris, are gleefully anticipating a big summer because two paragraphs in the French national budget give the town the right to reopen its gambling casino.

Until 1920 the town enjoyed great prosperity through its gaming tables, which attracted visitors from Paris in such numbers that five-minute train service was maintained. The town revenue was so great that the inhabitants were relieved of all local taxation.

Then the French Parliament closed the casino and for eleven years the big building has been standing in dilapidated desolation.

But the day after the reopening decree was voted the silent ruin awoke with a start as hundreds of workmen swarmed into it and began a race against time to get it ready for play by June 1, when the summer rush of visitors begins.

The whole town woke up. Land values jumped overnight, almost every shop in the place got a coat of new paint, and the smile that won't come off appeared on the faces of the 11,000 inhabitants.

To prevent small fry from losing what they can ill afford each player will have to purchase a $20 season ticket.

PATENT POOL BARS AMERICAN RADIOS

Powerful London Organization Closing Sale of Sets in England.

London, May 17 (U.P.).—Sales of American radio sets and accessories in Great Britain depend upon the real strength of the London Patent Pool, prominent American and British radio authorities have told the United Press.

At the present time Great Britain is a closed radio and wireless market. The entire industry is controlled and operated by the powerful and rich London Patent Pool.

Marconi's and a number of other important radio and wireless companies and combines are included in the membership.

License Applications.

Application for licenses to manufacture, assemble, or distribute radios must be made to the London Patent Pool. The Pool levies a charge of $1.20 for each valve holder. A three tube set results in an income to the pool of $3.60.

At the present time only one firm in Great Britain is allowed to import American radio sets and equipment. The license was granted a number of years ago. For this reason nothing can be done to stop this company from importing.

Since the very beginning of the London Patent Pool large amounts of the earnings have been set aside for legal purposes. It is understood that this sum exceeds several million sterling pounds and that the best legal talent in Great Britain is retained.

The United Press has been told by a number of authoritative groups that the London Patent Pool attempts to arbitrate with companies who fail to apply for a license, but if arbitration fails, the offending company is informed that the London Patent Pool will take the case to court.

Legal circles express varied opinions as to the legal position of the pool to force companies to secure licenses. It is generally agreed, however, that the pool, if forced, could and would take such a case through a number of courts. A case of this kind could easily continue for several years and cost thousands of dollars.

Huge Expense Involved.

It does not seem likely that a single company will attempt to fight the pool and take a chance of losing a legal battle that would involve such expense.

In the event a company did challenge the pool and won, profits made by selling radios in Great Britain might not justify the original expense.

Some quarters believe the position of the pool is weakening. So far, however, no firm has challenged the position.

Practically every known basic radio and accessory patent is included in the London Patent Pool. For this reason foreign sets are excluded. The home producers pay the pool what it asks of them and the pool protects them.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Ray Sennaby

CHAUFFEUR
IN THE LATTER PART OF THE 18TH CENTURY, A HORDE OF BRIGANDS OVERRAN CERTAIN SECTIONS OF FRANCE, PILLAGING VILLAGES AND KILLING PEOPLE. ONE OF THEIR PRACTICES WAS TO BURN THE FEET OF THEIR VICTIMS. FOR THIS REASON, THEY WERE CALLED 'CHAUFFEURS', A WORD WHICH MEANS ONE WHO HEATS. IT'S NO WONDER THAT WHEN THOSE FUNNY OLD ONE-LUNG AUTOMOBILES WERE FIRST INTRODUCED, THEIR OPERATORS WERE GIVEN THE SAME NAME.

SPRING PLAY.

Whenever there comes a warm, sunny day men roll out of offices, stores and factories at the noon hour to indulge in a few minutes of some sort of ball. All winter they have had a yearning, but it could not be indulged. Conditions were not right. Now the story is different. There is enough tang in the temperature to make exercise pleasant. Before long the temperature will be higher and a something will invite men to lie around and loaf.

This 15 to 30 minutes of ball at the noon hour means better work and more of it in the afternoon. It resembles vacation in that it lifts men out of the ruts, out of deadly routines and gives them some vim and push. It speeds up the work. It may change viewpoints.

The muscles make up far more than one-half the weight and volumes of all the body minus the bones. During the winter these muscles have had very little exercise. Their mechanism for self-cleansing is not in good working order. After the first play there will be lame arms and stiff backs. The sewers of the muscles need a spring cleaning. The little exercise clogs them up and floods the basement. But it will not be that way after, say, the first week. All winter the heart has been plugging away. What is called wind has been pretty well lost. After a short run or jump the heart will race and it may skip. A few days of play and the wind will be regained. All winter there has been a dearth of sunshine and that we had was of poor quality. Most of us have overdrawn at the bank. We are low in these things that sunshine gives us. We need more vitamin D and coloring matter in the blood and more of that vague quality—resistance—about which we talk so much and know so little. A few minutes' play daily in the sunshine raises our stock of these.

The small boys are not lagging behind their dads. Whenever the ground is dry enough groups can be seen playing marbles. Nobody knows why marbles divide with robins the honor of being harbingers of spring, but the game is just that. It is far from being a good game. It is not active enough to be such. It causes much stooping and squatting and that is good. It supplies the zest of competition and it invites to the open—all good points. That is about all that can be said for marbles. Presently that game will be put aside for some game of ball, and that will be an improvement.

HARDENING OF ARTERIES.

E. B. H. writes:

1. What is the difference between hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure?

2. What if anything can be done about it?

3. Does it make any difference what one eats?

4. Or drinks? Coffee for instance.

REPLY.

1. High blood pressure is the usual and principal symptom of hardening of the arteries.

2. Much can be done for high blood pressure in the stage in which fluctuation in the pressure is marked.

3. Yes, though diet is not the most important factor in cause or cure.

4. About the same as answer to No. 3. By stopping coffee one may contribute to comfort in many cases.

IN the midst of a battle royal among broadcasting stations for the use of the maximum amount of power, there is a radio station which had the Federal Radio Commission's permission to use 50,000 watts, and failed to avail itself of the privilege. This was revealed when the commission canceled a construction permit issued to Station KNX, Los Angeles, Calif., providing for an increase in power from 5,000 to 50,000 watts.

This is the first instance in which a station has defaulted the right to step up its power to the maximum. The permit has been extended at three month intervals at the station's request up until last week.

A program in the lighter vein has been selected by Lawrence Tibbett, barytone, for his microphone appearance tonight (WMAL, 7:30 o'clock). "Carry Me 'Long," "Gwine to Hebb'n," "Life is a Dream," "Without a Song" and "Old Man River" are included.

A NEW series of broadcasts, featuring well-known Washington newspaperwomen, will be inaugurated by Station WOL tonight at 8 o'clock; "Women's Fashions and Activities" is the subject selected for discussion in her turn two or three weeks hence by Vyila Poe Wilson, of The Washington Post.

A guest-artist policy will be adopted by General Motors while The Brigadiers are touring Europe. Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray, who costarred in the motion picture "The Desert Song," will be the attraction tonight (WRC, 8:30 p. m.), reviving numbers from that operetta. Frank Black will continue as orchestra director.

Featuring "Bob" Burdette, celebrated coach and associate of the late Knute Rockne, WLW will inaugurate a series of health-building exercises this morning from 6:45 to 8 o'clock. This information is for fans who are able to tune the Cincinnati broadcaster during the morning hours.

Roumanian Gypsy romances will be recalled by Konrad Bercovici, during the Women's Radio Review today (WRC, 2 p. m.).

Rufus Dawes, president of the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition of 1933, will speak on Wednesday night (WRC, 9:30 p. m.). He is the brother of Ambassador Dawes, whose composition, "Melody," will be played by a string orchestra during the broadcast.

WHEN Alice Crawford, who will Portray Mati Hari in "Mati Hari, the Spy," a radio drama to be presented tomorrow night (WRC, 10 p. m.), met the famous Dutch dancer in London shortly before the war, she little realized that she was meeting, in the flesh, an almost legendary figure, and an historical character whom she herself would later "play" to an audience of millions.

Mati Hari and her dancers appeared briefly on the London theatrical horizon in 1914, just before the commencement of hostilities plunged the feminine spy into a series of intrigues for Germany, carried to the very inner circles of French officialdom, which brought her finally face to face with a French firing squad.

The strains of "Ach, Du Lieber Augustine," the signal that the Little German Band is on the air at KDKA, will be heard at 7 o'clock, Eastern standard time, hereafter. This is one of the most popular features the Pittsburg station has ever presented.

Mable Garrison, former Metropolitan Opera star, who appears at WBAL each Tuesday night, has to have the microphone lowered for her. Miss Garrison is not much more than five feet tall.

STORIES from the land of sawdust and spangles will be brought to radio listeners by F. Beverly Kelley, of the Ringling Bros. circus, early this afternoon (WMAL, 1:45 p. m.)

Morton Downey, who begins his contract with the "Camel Quarter" series June 1, will be replaced by Kate Smith, Washington girl, on the five-times-weekly period heard here over WMAL at 6:15 p. m.

Another young Washingtonian, Durward Bowersox, violinist, will be guest soloist with the Dan-Dee Bakers tonight (WRC, 5:30 p. m.) playing Drigo's "Serenade."

THREE of the largest studios at NBC have such small doorways that pianos can not be carted through without removing the doors. The doors weigh 700 pounds, requiring three husky men to handle.

A Interprets the MODE

Stunning afternoon frock of black crepe marocain, with white georgette gilet and silver embroidery. (Courtesy of Dupouy-Magnin, Paris.)

New York, May 17.

LACES, it is conceded by those who are in a position to know the most about the matter, are becoming to just about every woman, for several reasons. First it is a beautiful fabric in itself and enhances the loveliness of the beautiful woman who wears it; second, for the woman who is past her youth it has a softening and youthifying magic; and third, and possibly most important, for the woman of plump, mature figure it serves as an effective camouflage for her imperfections.

Well, it seemed to me that there were certainly three good reasons for me to look around the lacy world and see just what was happening. Black lace, though it has been popular for many seasons now, is still very much in the running. But it is not used for entire gowns so much as it is used in combination with some other fabric, such as black chiffon or, which is very smart with white organdie. Beige lace, too, is generally used in conjunction with other materials, and especially with frocks of the new chartreuse or lemon colorings. And white, that favorite of all laces for the very, dewily young, is as lovely as ever, and those who wear it are given the same air of innocent charm that it has always imparted.

Cotton laces are seen in the smartest collections of resort wear. A natural colored linen lace dress, with a great red bow on one hip was an outstanding model at one of the latest openings I attended just before leaving Paris. It was of an extremely fine, all-over pattern, and was worn over a knee-length slip of red crepe romain. All-over eyeletted batistes and organdies have become, almost overnight, the most chic of all summertime materials, and I was told by a house that had been instrumental in bringing back these fabrics that the smartest women were buying two or three of them, in pastel colorings, for their summer wardrobes.

* * * *

Perfect for the dressed-up type of afternoon function is this dress from Dupouy-Magnin that I sketch for you today. It is simple of line, of heavy black crepe marocain, and formal in its interesting trimming of silver embroidery. Don't you love the beloro effect? 'N' that graceful, natural waistline is attained by intricate, hidden tucking. This dress is really marvelously flattering to one of more-than-slender proportions, and gives the mature woman just the proper touch of chic and dignity.

* * * *

If you wear a woven raffia hat far enough on the side of your head, and a jeweled clip holds your windblown locks where the hat doesn't, why, you will be very Parisienne, 'specially if your hat be woven of that nice flat, shiny raffia about a half-inch wide!

Or if you are not going in for being quite so Parisienne, the medium-large hat illustrated above has a pleated ruffle for trimming and a cunning little pleated "chour" and ribbon bow.

* * * *

What is the absolute minimum of lingerie that can be worn by Lovely Ladies under their summer frocks to insure the greatest comfort, both bodily and mental? For one thing is as bad as the other, now isn't it—that fear of being insufficiently clad beneath the sheer frocks brought forth by warm weather, and that hot and stuffy feeling of one undie too many? I give you the answer to this question in this week's leaflet, which you may have by sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post. 'N' what is really more practical than just the answer, I tell you how to make these charming undies yourself!

Do remember to read Dare's weekly Washington Post.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

PHLOX FOR THE AMATEUR'S GARDEN.

AS a rule, when speaking of phloxes, we think of the tall perennial phloxes and are apt to overlook the dwarf species which carpet the slopes where it is difficult to grow good grass.

The blossoms of the tall varieties are borne in large panicles, often a foot or more in length on stems 2 to 5 feet high. The colors range from pure white to scarlet, purple, pink and dark scarlet with endless intermediate shades. Some of the earlier kinds begin to bloom in June, others a few weeks later, and the well-known white variety, Pearl, seldom comes into bloom before August.

Phloxes, aside from their decorative values, are very adaptable. You can make them do so much. They will flower early or late, will grow dwarf or tall and will with coaxing give flowers from May until frost.

As the late-flowering varieties grow taller than the earlier ones, they should be planted in the back of the border. Most lovers of phloxes plant them in borders in alternate rows—early and late flowering types.

No amateur's garden should be without phloxes, for they lend color to a border the entire season. While they are in a measure indifferent to soil conditions, they are responsive to good treatment.

After planting they should be watered frequently. Moisture about the roots means unqualified success in growing phloxes. If you will begin in the early summer and use the garden hose every week right up until fall you should have all the flowers you want.

Old, established plants should be lifted and divided once in three years. The time to do this is in October or November. You can divide phloxes in the spring, though I think May 18 is a little too late to move them.

The tall varieties can be grown from seed sown in the fall and transplanted in the spring. The seeds germinate easily, but it is really better to plant established roots of a given kind, as seedlings are apt to produce indifferent flowers.

The phlox subiata is the low creeping variety which splashes our hillsides in the early spring with softest pink. To prevent the creeping phlox from dying out during spells of long-continued wet weather, you should shear the plants as soon as they have finished flowering.

The moss pink phlox and the Douglas phlox for especially dry soils are well suited to ordinary garden use.

What Today Means to You

"TAURUS."

IF May 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:10 a. m. to 11:25 a. m., from 3:35 p. m. to 5:25 p. m., and from 9:10 p. m. to 11:05 p. m. The danger hours are from noon to 2:15 p. m. and from 6:35 p. m. to 8:40 p. m.

Astrological indications on May 18 point to unexpectedness. Travel is not improbable as the result of a sudden decision. Investments, hitherto considered quite safe, may cause misgivings. Friendships, hallowed by time and association, may reach the breaking point. Be cautious and prudent!

Children born on this May 18 will be affectionate and unselfish. Inharmonious surroundings will grate on them. They will be intelligent and ambitious, but will always demand an unusual amount of encouragement and attention. If this be not forthcoming, they will "lose interest."

You, if born on May 18, are rather enigmatical, as no one knows how to take you. With a smile and a cheeriness that deceives, you can act and speak in a way that rankles; with a frown and a gloominess that is forbidding, you can do and say—and also mean—kind things, the memory of which is cherished. Your friends, too, can never be anticipated. One day you are full of joy of living, while the next, without rhyme or reasons, you are depressed and cast down. The only thing that can, with assurance, be expected of you is the unexpected.

Your insatiable curiosity has led you to study and your knowledge is fundamental, although you do not show interest or capacity in exploiting it to your advantage. You are not very sociable, and are happiest when alone. You evince little interest in recreations or pastimes, although physically equipped to be an active participant. Ambition does not stir you. If you are surrounded with reasonable comforts, you are satisfied. Only a great love, for which you are destined, will revolutionize your plan of life. When this blossoms into existence, you will undergo a metamorphosis and discard the trappings of hurliahness, which, even today, only disguises, but do not hide, a warm, sympathetic and generous nature.

Successful people born May 18:

2—Peter H. Bell, Governor of Texas.
3—Sheldon Jackson, Presbyterian missionary to Alaska.
4—James McMillen, manufacturer.
5—William T. Bull, physician and surgeon.

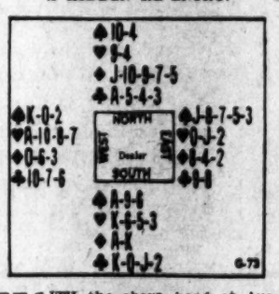
A HIDDEN RE-ENTRY.



WITH the above hand at Auction Bridge South's bid of one No Trump would be followed by three passes. At Contract Bridge South, with a 20-count, bid No Trump and North closed the contracting with three No Trumps.

West led the Seven of Hearts, and South could not risk holding up his King when East played the Jack (the hold-up would lose a trick if East's holding permitted him to lead Hearts twice). Declarer could see eight sure tricks and three more if the Queen of Diamonds should be guarded but once; so he played two rounds of Diamonds and they gave up when the Queen did not fall. With all the remaining Hearts against him, he was content to win four tricks in Clubs, two in Diamonds, one in Spades and one in Hearts, and be set one trick. Do you see wherein South was too easily discouraged?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

Declarer was correct in playing his King of Hearts on the first trick, and in considering Diamonds the sole possibility for the game going trick. He did not realize, however, that if the adverse Clubs were divided 3-2 and if West had led from a four-card Heart suit, game could be made. Whether West had led from five Hearts or four was uncertain. After playing the Ace and King of Diamonds, South should have led the King and Queen of Clubs and, both adversaries following, should overtake the Jack with dummy's Ace. A Diamond lead at this stage would establish the suit, even if the adverse Diamonds were divided 4-2. West would win with the Diamond Queen and run three Hearts, but when it develops that West led from a four-card Heart suit, the danger is over. West follows his Hearts with the King of Spades, but South wins with the Ace and leads the Deuce of Clubs. Dummy's Five wins the trick, enabling dummy to cash his last Diamond and make game.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Baron" (also spelled "Barron") is found recorded in English documents as early as 1205. It came into English through the French, but it is ultimately of Teutonic origin. Its original meaning was "the soldier" and "the warrior," but it later came to be used as a title. However, concerning the origin of "Baron" as a family name, we should recall what has previously been said about other names of this type. Like "Herzog" (duke), "Papst" and "Papst" (pope) and "Kaiser" (emperor), "Baron" seldom implies that the persons who are so called were ever given that title or that their ancestors were ever given it. The name was generally given to persons who took the part of a baron in a pageant and to persons who lived or carried on business which displayed the picture of a baron as a means of identification. There is evidence that in some cases "Baron" was first given as a nickname to pompous persons who affected the attitude of nobility. Instances of this name in thirteenth century records in England are Osbert le Barun, Richard le Baron, Geoffry le Barun and John Barun. Forms of this name also occur in France and Germany. The French diminutive form "Baronet" is especially common. As an English name "Baron" was introduced into Ireland at an early date. A certain Robert Barun was a member of the Dublin Guild-Merchant in 1226. However, in Ireland "Barron" and "Baron" have often been adopted as the supposed English equivalents of the Celtic "O Bearin" and "O Biorain," which really mean "the descendant of the stripling."

The family name "Untiedt" is the low German equivalent of "Unzeit." These names, which are rather common in Germanic countries, were first given as nicknames. Their literal translation is "wrong time" or "unseasonable time," but as nicknames they may be freely translated "untimely," "unseasonable" and "immature."

Sour Cream Cake.

(Very tender)

1 egg
1 cup thick sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1¾ cups flour
1 teaspoon soda

Beat eggs and add rest of ingredients. Beat three minutes. Pour into loaf pan lined with waxed paper. Bake 35 minutes in moderately slow oven. Cool and frost.

Caramel Pecan Frosting.

(Suitable for white or yellow cakes)

1 cup dark brown sugar
½ cup sugar
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup broken pecans

Mix sugars, milk and butter. Cook over moderate fire and stir frequently until soft ball forms when portion is slowly poured into cup of cold water. Set aside 15 minutes. Do not touch nor stir. Add vanilla and beat until creamy. Add nuts and carefully frost cake.

Chicken Creole.

(Using Leftovers)

3 tablespoons butter or chicken fat
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup chicken stock
1 cup tomatoes
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups diced, cooked chicken
3 tablespoons chopped green peppers
2 tablespoons chopped onions
½ cup cooked rice
½ cup cracker crumbs
2 tablespoons butter, melted

Melt three tablespoons of butter and add flour. When blended add stock and tomatoes. Cook until creamy sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add salt, chicken and seasonings. Add rice. Pour into shallow, buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with crumbs which have been mixed with melted butter. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. Serve in dish in which baked.

Daughter of Ethiopian Emperor Is Betrothed

Paris, May 17 (A.P.).—A dispatch to the Havas Agency from Addis Ababa says that the engagement of Princess Senabaourq, daughter of the Ethiopian emperor, and the eldest son of Ras Hailou, Governor of Godjam Province, has been announced.

In view of Ras Hailou's alleged previous hostility to the emperor, it was believed, the dispatch said, that the projected match would contribute much to the peace of Abyssinia.

Mascot Will Sound Taps.

Taps at the fourth annual massing of the colors next Sunday afternoon in the open-air amphitheater at Washington Cathedral will be sounded by Nicky Bedini, 11-year-old mascot and protege of the 260th Coast Artillery, National Guard, of the District. A crowd of about 10,000 persons is expected for the event.

HOME LAUNDRY

ALL DRESSED UP AND
No Place to Owe!

We firmly believe that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. We've been looking at the world across a grocery counter too long not to be sure of that. But we haven't been fooled by what's going on outside our store windows . . . We've noticed that most men, on their way home to dinner, have a quick eye for a smart dress or a saucy bonnet.

In short, husbands like to eat fine food and see fine feathers. Which doesn't seem unreasonable to us—except, you know the fuss they make if you run up a bill for them.

Of course, you also know our advice in such matters; if you buy your food for cash at an A&P store, you're sure of the finest food money can buy—and at prices so low you won't have to skimp on your dinners or your dresses to pay for it. You can actually keep all dressed up on what you save in A&P stores—without running into debt for it either.

BELASCO'S BURIAL HELD IN NEW YORK

Many Persons Attend Rites as Final Tribute Is Paid Producer.

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—David Belasco, acknowledged master of the stage, was buried today.

Funeral services were conducted at Central Synagogue, with Mayor James J. Walker and outstanding figures of the theatrical world in attendance. More than 2,000 persons crowded into the synagogue while hundreds of others, unable to get in, lined the street for a glimpse of the bronze casket blanketed with violets.

Edwin Milton Royle, playwright and friend of Belasco, read a eulogy. Rabbi Jonas Wise of the Central Synagogue, conducted the services. Royle, who is a few years younger than Mr. Belasco was at the time of his death last Thursday, drew an intimate picture of his lifelong friend. Belasco was 76 when he died.

Royle classified Belasco as one of three great men in distinctly different fields to die recently. The other two, he said, were George F. Baker, financier, and Professor Albert A. Michelson, scientist.

Dr. Wise paid a high tribute to the genius of the late producer, who was a member of his parish.

Honorary pallbearers were Mayor Walker, Daniel Frohman, Lee Shubert, George M. Cohan, Edward Childs Carpenter, A. O. Brown, Frank Gillmore, former Supreme Court Justice Mitchell Erlanger and Henry Bernstein, French dramatist.

Several hundred actors and actresses of a past decade were present as well as the better known players of the present day. Irene Fenwick and William Morris were among the mourners.

Mrs. Morris Gest, Mr. Belasco's daughter, and her husband, also a theatrical producer, occupied an automobile immediately behind the hearse.

Burial was at Linden Hills, Long Island, beside the body of Mrs. Belasco, who died a few years ago.

$65 Lost in Street Car.

Arthur McMann, of Dorchester, Mass., yesterday told police that while he was riding on a street car near Union Station he lost a billfold containing valuable papers and $65 in cash.

Rules for the Contest

1. The contest can be entered at any time before midnight of Wednesday, May 27, by sending an ad to Post-Zain Amateur Ad Editor, The Washington Post, Washington, D. C.

2. It is open to everyone except professional advertising men or women or the employes of any newspaper.

3. The Post will award $1,000.00 in cash for the best ad submitted during the entire contest. To be eligible for this award, entrant must have written at least one ad on each concern listed.

4. Write about one or all of the concerns. Submit as many ads as you can. Lots of weekly prizes every week.

5. Each ad submitted must be on a separate piece of paper. Write your name and address also telephone number plainly on the back.

6. Contestants are under no obligations and do not have to be subscribers to The Post to compete.

7. The names of judges will be announced this week. Their decisions are final.

8. All ads are the property of the concern about whom they are written and may be used by them as they see fit.

9. Remember contest closes May 27, 1931.

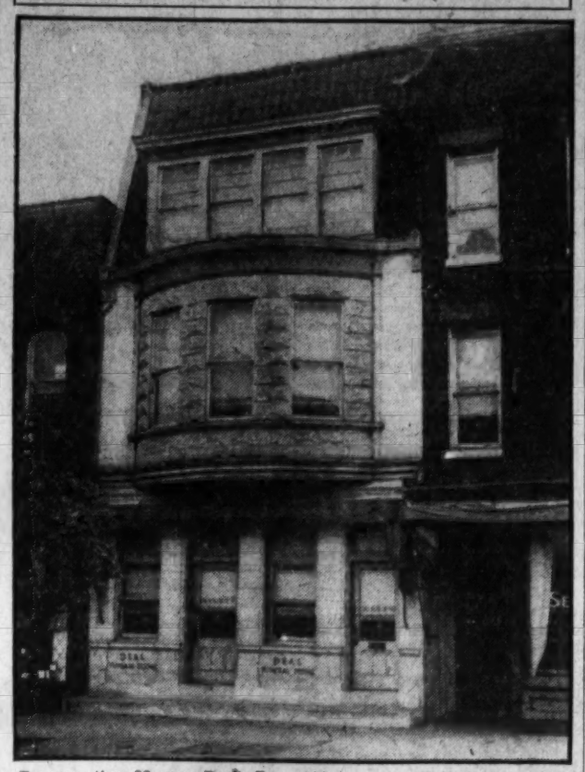
FUNERAL HOME IN AD TEST



For more than 20 years Deal's Funeral Service has been available to the people of Washington at reasonable prices. Not only have they served the public at reasonable prices, but their service, assuming complete responsibility and careful supervision of every detail, proclaims them one of Washington's leading funeral establishments. The dignity, respect and sympathy which they give you in your hour of sorrow lends itself to excellent ad writing in The Post Zain ad writing contest. Deal Funeral Home welcomes comparisons. Beauty and refinement may always be found at this perfect funeral home, located at 816 H street northeast.

Winner Finds Ad-Writing Is Fun as Well as Benefit

Gets Merchandise Award, Learns to Know Firms, and Derives Real Pleasure Out of Post-Zain Amateur Contest.

"Time and tide wait for no man," it is said, and it might be added, neither does The Post Zain campaign. You ad writers must have your ads in by Wednesday noon. The judging takes place on Thursday. If you want to be that $100 first prize winner, you will follow the well-known rule that "practice makes perfect" and write many ads each day.

You have an unlimited chance to win worth-while prizes in the sixth week, which is now well under way.

In addition to the $100 first prize, The Post is giving a $25 order on Underwood & Underwood, $25 order on Goldsmith & Co., five pounds of Avignone Freres delicious candy and ten pounds of Wilkins coffee. It also is giving 280 merchandise awards. That means eight merchandise prizes for each of the 35 participating concerns.

Special Prizes Offered.

Don't overlook all those special prizes some of the participating concerns are giving weekly. They are well worth setting up until the "wee hours" of the morning writing ads.

One amateur ad writer, at least, is doing that very thing, sitting up until the "wee hours." This letter is being published to show what a lot of fun you can have writing ads in this contest and even though this lady's prize was a merchandise award, what thrills and pleasure she has had writing ads since the beginning of this contest trying each time to capture that $100 first prize. She is not discouraged, however, and means to keep on. Remember, it isn't necessary to be a $100 winner to win that $1,000 grand prize. Every ad will receive the same consideration from the judges.

Read the following letter from Mrs. Elizabeth R. Crosby, 647 Lexington Place northeast, and get busy and send in those ads. Those you mail today may win.

Letter Tells of Benefits.

"Please accept my hearty thanks for the merchandise prize the judges kindly awarded me. I'm very pleased to have won a box of Avignone Freres' delicious candy, and so are my family.

"It's all a lot of fun and has become my favorite indoor sport. My literary work is done in the spooky hours of midnight and after, for I work at a full-time job, keep house and have two children. I'm man of the house, too, which is a reason prizes come in so handy.

"Aside from the thrill of the contest, I've acquired some permanent benefits from the campaign. One is a greater knowledge and appreciation of the firms listed. For instance, I went into Goldsmith & Co.'s store to look around. I found it the sort of establishment where I would want a precious pin repaired and so I left it. I also found they could complete for me a set of Stieff sterling started long ago. So with the other concerns; when an occasion arises to use their particular service, I think of them first, because I know them.

"This is another and perhaps overly ambitious result. The training and practice are wonderful. I laugh to myself as I hear the milk man go by and wonder what he thinks of me, so eternally up late. But I know when as a renowned advertising writer I compile my autobiography, I shall say I received my start from the Post-Zain Contest, writing ads until 3 a. m.

Thanks again."

PERSISTENCE TO WIN IN POST-ZAIN TEST

Sixth Week in Ad Contest to Close on Wednesday; Easy to Enter.

Wednesday will soon be here and once again some one will win that $100 first prize. Remember, all ads must be in at 12 o'clock noon Wednesday to be considered in the sixth week judging of The Post-Zain ad writing contest. You can be that first prize winner. It is that stick-to-it-iveness that wins.

Suggestions are published daily to help you write ads about the 35 participating concerns. Days come and go, but make next Tuesday, the day ads are judged, the day of days for you. Win that $100 first prize. Write many ads each day—give yourself every opportunity to win.

In writing about the J. M. Stein & Co. feature their young men's tailoring department, which has recently been created. Tell about those excellently tailored young men's suits which can now be had for the low price of $65 and $75. Remember these suits are made of the finest domestic materials and some imports. Call at J. M. Stein & Co. and let them give you additional information which will help you write the prize-winning ad. Don't overlook the special prize this concern is giving for the best ad written during the entire contest.

Write Ads About Hotels.

Wardman Park and the Carlton Hotels are wonderful subjects for ads. The Wardman Park Hotel occupies a unique position among the great hotels of the world. It is commonly known as the "Home of the Celebrities." The White House is not more than ten minutes from this hotel, which is nestled high up on the hills above Rock Creek Park, where it commands a broad and beautiful view of America's most interesting city. In your ads tell about the swimming pool, the dancing, the saddle club and golf club and the variety of other interesting sports the famous Wardman Park Hotel affords.

Besides writing general ads about the Boyd Business University and the Boyd Employment Agency, write lots of limericks, poems and slogans. The best poem, limerick or slogan written about either the university or agency will win $5 in cash for you this week. Here are some tips on what to write: The Boyd Business University operates the largest employment agency within a radius of 300 miles. Its employment bureau is one of the three largest school placement services in the United States.

The Boyd School contends that business education is of little value to a person unless that person can find employment, using his specialized training. They place the right person in the right position.

Can Be Had on Terms.

Here is an ad written about the famous ABC Washer and Conion Ironer which can be had on an easy payment plan at Barber & Ross, Inc. This might help you write that prize winning ad and win the $100 first prize on this concern. This ad was submitted by Mrs. C. H. Sweargin, 937 M street northwest.

THE ABC WASHER RANKS FIRST
In Efficiency as Well as Name

A utomatically washes, rinses, blues, starches, dries.
B uilt for lifetime service—sturdy and practical.
H ealth, happiness, time and clothes conserved.
E asy action—a touch of the finger operates it.
R eady to serve always—never out of order.

The Conion Automatic Ironer is a worthy helpmate to the ABC Washer. It refinishes the job. "Irons everything that can be ironed by hand"—and better. One satisfied customer wrote, "My wife now does in three hours the ironing that formerly required two days"—

WEEK'S TRADE GAINS ON SEASON'S LET-UP

Steel Mill Activity Holds Ground; Freight Loadings Show Increase.

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—The past week in business saw some let-up in the seasonal contraction that is normally apparent at this time.

The week's record appears favorable only in a negative way; little more is to be expected at this period. The seasonal sag set in such a low level, however, that gloom has been intensified to a degree seemingly unjustified by actual changes.

Steel mill activity was in the aggregate maintained at the level of 47 per cent of capacity of the previous week. Automobile output was a little higher, and while figures on building contracts let for the first half of the month are not yet available, the volume of building permits applied for in April are of favorable augury.

Wages Hold Attention.

Isolated labor troubles have served to rivet attention to wage scales. An effort to reduce wages at a small steel mill in the Youngstown area was abandoned. Most large employers who have commented on the matter oppose wage cuts, although the feeling persists in some financial circles that manufacturing costs must be substantially reduced to bring prices of manufactured articles in line with agricultural and raw material prices, to restore a balance which will permit economic recovery.

Commodity prices remain unsettled, although aggregate declines this week were smaller than of late, as measured by most indices. Nonferrous metals, scrap steel and textiles have remained soft spots, but the wheat market maintained a better tone.

Freight car loadings, as reported for the latest week, showed a fair gain over the preceding week, but it was no larger than the normal seasonal upturn for the period.

Rail Situation Studied.

While it is still felt that something must be done to halt the severe decline in railway earnings, current indications are that several carriers are experiencing a little improvement. New York Central, which ran in the red in the first quarter for the first time in years, is said to be a little better than breaking even now.

Improvement in the gilt-edge division of the bond market has helped municipal financing and, while mortgage money is still scarce, some observers expect the latest move on the part of Federal Reserve authorities to cheapen credit may have a mildly stimulating influence on construction. Dun's figures on building permits taken out in April showed a decline from last year of only 4.8 per cent, by far the best comparison made in any month so far this year.

April retail sales reports are in the main mildly encouraging and, while wet and cold weather in the last week has held retail buying in check, there has been a little more activity in wholesaling and jobbing, in preparation for sales of summer merchandise.

Week's Bond Prices Divided in Market

Gilt-Edge Issues Highher, With Losses on Second-Grade Loans.

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—Probably the most significant fact of the bond market last week was its two-sided movement.

Striking evidence of the persistent demand for issues of gilt-edge standing appeared in a number of instances. United States Liberty and Treasury bonds achieved successive new peak prices. Most of the high grade corporate obligations either reached high records or sold within slight fractions of them.

The even stronger demand for such bonds of short terms was evident in the sale of $52,000,000 of four-year corporate stock of the City of New York, which was publicly subscribed within a few minutes, and whose interest cost to the city was the lowest in 31 years.

This sale emphasizes further the concentration of the demand for ultra high grade bonds. Of the $60,289,000 of new bonds floated last week, $58,329,000, including the New York issue, were State and municipal obligations. That indicates as well as anything that the strongest demand is still pretty much for the issues of highest credit standing.

The quick success of the New York City flotation preceded a general advance in municipal obligations in the over-the-counter market. Financial officials of other cities and States watched the operation closely and it is expected that many of them will sell issues in the near future. Some $400,000,000 in bonds were authorized at the elections last November but only a small part of them have been sold so far.

Sales will be held by 40 communities this week which will aggregate $46,000,000. Bids will be opened on Monday for $19,337,000 of bonds of Detroit, Mich. Newark, N. J., will sell $10,000,000 of bonds the following day.

BRIEFS FROM WALL STREET

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—New State and municipal bonds scheduled for award this week total $48,841,048, compared with $63,832,922 last week and the weekly average of $39,319,819 for the year to date the bond buyer reports. Detroit, Mich., has invited tenders on Monday for $19,337,000 improvement bonds, for which bidders are asked to name the interest rate at not exceeding 4½ per cent. Tuesday Newark, N. J., will consider bids for $10,605,000 4 per cent improvement bonds.

April industrial operations, while receding somewhat from the rate of February and March, continued above midwinter conditions by a wider margin than in 1930 and by fully as great a one as in the spring of 1929, Electrical World reports in its monthly survey of electrical energy consumption in 3,000 manufacturing plants scattered throughout the country. Activity last month was 2 per cent less than in March and 12 per cent under April, 1930.

Plans for a merger have been approved by directors of Hygrade Lamp Co., of Salem, Mass., and the Sylvania Products Co. and Nilco Lamp Works, Inc., both of Emporium, Pa. Stockholders shortly will be asked to approve the merger, which will be effected without additional public financing.

Plans for a merger of five personal finance companies with combined resources of approximately $20,000,000 under the name of Franklin Plan Corporation, of Delaware, were announced today. The merger will embrace the present Franklin Plan Corporation, National Cash Credit Association, American Cash Credit Corporation, Franklin Thrift and Loan Association of America, and Franklin Plan Co. of America.

Net Bags Save You Money By Saving Your Clothes

MODERN LAUNDRY EXPERT EXPLAINS "NET BAG SYSTEM"

Tells How Manhattan Saves You Money By Saving Your Clothes

Present-day laundry methods, which preserve clothes as well as clean them, are far superior to the old home method of rubbing and scrubbing, according to Mr. E. F. Wesely, chief of the Research Department of Manhattan Laundry. Mr. Wesely attributes a large part of the Manhattan Laundry's success to their Net Bag System of washing.

Manhattan Laundry adopted the Net Bag for washing clothes six years ago. Clothes, they agreed, could be washed just as clean in net bags and would wear longer if rubbing and scrubbing were eliminated.

Manhattan's famous Net Bag System of washing, as described by Mr. Wesely, follows: First, the clothes are assorted according to their color and material and placed in individual net bags which bear the customer's name and contain only that customer's articles. Safe in the nets and protected from all metal or other hard surfaces, the clothes go into the washers. Here they are subjected to the gentle cleansing action of swirling hot suds which penetrate each garment and loosen every particle of dirt. Only the purest of Palm Oil soaps and soft, filtered water are used, after first having been inspected and tested by the Research Department. Many rinsings of fresh, clear water follow, removing every trace of dirt from the clothes and leaving the fabrics refreshed and clean. They are then dried, starched where necessary and ironed by the most modern methods.

That clothes wear longer and look better when washed in Net Bags has been proven by test after test. For instance, two shirts, exactly the same, were washed fifty times each, one in a net bag, the other by hand. At the end of the test the net-bag washed shirt showed absolutely no signs of wear, while the hand-washed shirt had become a sad combination of rough edges, torn seams and broken buttons. Other tests on all sorts of wearing apparel are being carried on regularly and in every case show the Net Bag System to be far superior in preserving the original sheen of the cloth. At Manhattan the Nets Get the Wear and the Clothes Get the Wash.

Enthusiastic Customer Praises Net Bag System

In a recent letter to the Manhattan Laundry Mrs. E. R. D. writes:

". . . But the one actual fact that pleases me most is that the clothes do not show as much wear as they did when I had my laundry done at home. . . . It is indeed a pleasure to recommend you. . . ."

This letter is typical of the many received by Manhattan from satisfied customers throughout the District of Columbia and Virginia.

Such letters bear out Manhattan's claim that "Net Bag Laundering Saves You Money by Saving Your Clothes."

Three-Day Collection And Delivery Service

Quite another Manhattan feature which has found great favor with Washington housewives is their 3-Day Collection and Delivery Service. In this highly developed system your clothes are collected one day, laundered to your order the next and delivered to you promptly the afternoon of the third day. For instance, if your clothes are collected Monday morning they are delivered Wednesday afternoon; called for Tuesday, back home Thursday, and so on. No delay. No worry. You know when you'll get your clothes when Manhattan has them. And there is no additional charge for this extra service.

Services To Fit Every Need And Every Purpose

Manhattan offers the housewife a wide selection of economical services—from Complete Finished Family to individual piece work. There is a service to fit every need and purse, and every service receives Net Bag Care.

Damp Wash is the most inexpensive service of all. It costs only 5 cents a pound, and as small as an 80-cent bundle can be sent. Clothes are returned damp, ready for the line. THRIF-T is another inexpensive service. Flat pieces are all ironed, but the wearing apparel is returned damp. Only 8 cents a pound with a minimum bundle of $1.

In the Rough Dry all the flat pieces are ironed, wearing apparel comes back ready to be ironed at home. Minimum bundle, 75 cents, only 10 cents a pound. In Economy another popular service, everything is machine ironed, including flat work, and returned ready for use. Men's shirts, 10 cents each additional. Few other articles may need retouching. Minimum, $1.25, only 12 cents a pound.

All Ironed Ready to Use. This covers all classes of Family Finished Laundry Service. These Ready-to-Wear services are reasonably priced according to the degree of niceties required. Our telephone operators will be glad to give any information regarding them.

There are many other Manhattan services to serve the housewife's every need. Shirts and Collars, Table and Bed Linens, Blankets, Rugs, Curtains and Dry Cleaning and Dyeing. All are economical. And the Net Bags Save You Money By Saving Your Clothes.

NATS BEAT BROWNS, 4-2, AFTER LOSING FIRST, 7-1

Successive Home Runs By West and Bluege in 9th Give Brown Victory

Blaeholder Is Victim in Duel; Cronin Hitless in 2 Games.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent).

SPORTSMANS PARK, St. Louis, Mo., May 17.—Successive home runs off the bats of Sam West and Ossie Bluege, coming in the ninth with the Nats one behind at the time, enabled the Nationals to turn in a 4-to-2 victory over the St. Louis Browns here this afternoon after they had seen their six-game winning streak broken in the first game of the Sabbath twin bill. The score of the opening fracas was 7 to 1, with another homer, this off Heinie Manush's bat, accounting for Washingtons' only run.

In taking the nightcap, the Nats shook off another "jinx," beating George Blaeholder, who trounced them in every one of his four starts against them last year. Lloyd Brown was the winning pitcher, while the veteran, Sam Gray, earned the decision over "General" Crowder in the first fracas.

The Nats were never in the running in the first game, but the second was a thriller and saw them show the fight for which they are noted, by snatching victory after they apparently had been beaten when the Browns broke a deadlock in the preceding frame.

Manush Enjoys Field Day.

Heinie Manush enjoyed a field day at the bat. In addition to his four-base clout and double in the opener, he cracked out another two-sacker and two singles in the second. Joe Cronin, whose consecutive game hitting streak reached thirteen yesterday, went hitless in both of today's affairs.

Goose Goslin practically won the opener for his team with his third homer of the year, one being on at the time. Bluege's was his sixth, while Manush and West are just breaking in the elite home run class.

Had it not been for Manush's homer with the sacks empty in the fourth, the Nationals would have been shut out in the opening game, for Gray had the Washington hitters literally eating out of his hand. The only other near chances they had of doing any run-coining were killed. In the fifth, Crowder hit into a double play after Jordan and Spencer had singled with one gone, while in the eighth, one basers by Crowder and Hayes were nullified by Sam Rice's roller to Melillo for the third out.

Meanwhile Crowder's start, an experiment on Manager Johnson's part, was anything but a success. The "General" went the route and never granted more than two hits in any one inning, but he was hit hard and consistently, had only two scoreless rounds, and was in trouble much of the time. The Browns knicked his slants for nine hits, only one more than Gray granted, and benefited from two wild pitches and some of the five passes he issued.

Crowder's Wildness Aids Browns.

As a matter of fact, Crowder's first wild pitch, which let Levey score in the first and his first walk, which was followed by Goslin's homer, alone beat the Nats, as the other four St. Louis runs scored were superfluous.

Manush, with a double and homer led the Nat attack, with West also getting two safeties. McNeely, former Nat, showed the way to the Brownies, getting a double and two singles. In addition to the snapping of the Nats' winning streak, Cronin's consecutive game hitting string was snapped at thirteen.

Hayes started the second game with a double over Goslin's head and scored a moment later on Manush's liner single to right.

Blaeholder and Brown then staged a mound duel until the fifth, when the Browns knotted the string on two bases on balls and Goslin's single to right. But for Harry Rice's fast and accurate return peg to the plate, which nipped a second runner, the Browns might have won then and there. Between the coining of these markers neither team could get more than one man as far as third on each occasion after two were dead.

Melillio's error of West's grounder gave the Nats a little hope in the seventh. Bluege laid down a neat sacrifice, but no further help was forthcoming. With two gone, Hargrave was purposely walked and Brown then lined to Goslin to end the round.

Browns Score in Eighth.

In the eighth, the Browns broke the deadlock, scoring once after having the bases filled with none out. Burns' opening single, Goslin's walk and Kress' sacrifice, on which Brown's throw to third for a force play, packed the aisles. On Jenkins' tap, a runner was nipped at the plate, but Goslin scored after Harry Rice's catch of Melillio's fly. Brown filled the bases again by passing McNeely, but the rally ended when Ferrell rolled sharply to Hayes.

With many of the fans leaving the park, West and Bluege stopped them with their successive home runs, which brought the Nats from one behind to one up. West's bounded off the top of the right-field stands, while Bluege's landed among the sun gods in left center. This latter clout ruined the day for Blaeholder, and Southpaw Walter Stewart relieved him.

Not satisfied with only a one-run lead, Johnson sent Dave Harris to hit for Jordan, and he came through with a single to right, and immediately was propelled to third on

British Amateur Play Opens Today; Voigt Among Choices

WESTWARD H, Devonshire, England, May 17 (U.P.).—George Voigt, of New York, and his thirteen countrymen who are to compete for Bobby Jones' undefended British amateur golf championship held a final practice today on the Saunton course, oigt, who was eliminated by Jones in the semifinals of the 1930 tourney, played with Douglas Fairbanks, who will compete in the tourney for the first time.

The entry list for the tourney, opening on the Westward Ho course tomorrow, includes 170 golfers with ten overseas countries represented.

This tourney, the event which Bobby Jones had his greatest difficulty in winning, will be his first undefended championship, and Voigt is the United States' principal hope for retaining honors.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

MANY explanations have been offered to account for the "mysterious music" of the Pascagoula River, in Mississippi, but the cause of the melodious strains is still a secret.

This river, more commonly known as "singing river," is usually heard about nightfall. The music, resembling the soft tones of a harp, is barely distinguishable at first, but gradually becomes louder and more distinct, until it seems to come from the very spot upon which you stand.

Listeners have vouched for the phantom music being truly mysterious, for the tones sound as though very close by, but they never can be located.

Singing River does not perform its concerts at any one spot, but at various places.

TAUSCHER IS RELEASED ON ON OPTION

Sent to Chattanooga on Griffith's Order; Liska Returns.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 17.—Pitcher Walter Tauscher has been ordered to report to the Chattanooga Lookouts on 24-hour option, Manager Walter Johnson announced this morning, following a long distance telephonic conversation with President Clark Griffith in Washington. The Nat leader was loath to see Tauscher leave; in fact, he declined to turn him over to the Nat farm when Joe Engel, Lookout president, first asked for Tauscher by telephone while the Nats were in Cleveland.

Tauscher, who left here tonight for his home at Rhinelander, Wis., where he will pick up Mrs. Tauscher before joining the Southern Leaguers, had been showing up particularly well in practice and Johnson had made up his mind to start him ere long. Not only did Johnson not want to lose Tauscher's services on this account, but with Pitcher Ad Liska still a doubtful quantity, the Nat leader is left only seven moundmen—Brown, Burke and Fischer, southpaws, and Marberry, Crowder, Jones and Hadley, who fling in the orthodox manner.

Liska Reports Arm Good as Ever.

Liska, who has recently undergone treatments for an ailing shoulder from a physician at Lincoln, Nebr., arrived here tonight and reported that, following the rest ordered after his treatments and subsequent workouts with the Lincoln Club, his arm is as good as ever, but until he shows

Chisox Slug Moore To Beat Red Sox, 2-1

Chicago, May 17 (A.P.).—Tommy Thomas hurled shut-out ball until two were out in the ninth today, when Earl Webb hit a home run to tie the score between the Boston Red Sox and the Chicago White Sox. But Wilcy Moore, successor to Milt Gaston, wasn't so good and two hits and two walks in the ninth inning gave the White Sox a 2-to-1 victory.

MACKS ROUT FERRELL TO WIN, 15-10

9th Straight Dropped by Indians; Grove Ends Game.

CLEVELAND, May 17 (A.P.).—The rampaging Philadelphia Athletics won their ninth straight game here today by slaughtering three Cleveland pitchers for 18 hits and a 15-to-10 victory. It was their third straight over Cleveland, which has dropped nine straight.

Three Athletics hit home runs with two on base, Simmons in the first, Foxx in the sixth and Cochrane in the ninth. Wesley Ferrell, trying for his sixth victory of the season, was walloped for twelve hits, and retired after Foxx's homer in the sixth. The Indians tied the score at 10-all in the seventh. Jablonowski was charged with the defeat.

Earnshaw lasted less than five innings and McDonald was taken out in the ninth with three on base. Lefty Grove then forced Pinch-

Cards Stop Giants, 6-1; Grimes in Fifth Win

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—The Cardinals evened the series by walloping the Giants today in the second game by a score of 6 to 1.

Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitballer, held the Giants to eight scattered hits, their lone run being due to a homer by Johnny Vergez, recruit third baseman. This was Grimes' fifth straight success, while it was Fitzsimmons' first defeat after five victories. Grimes now tops the National League pitchers.

Home runs figured in five of St. Louis' six runs, George Watkins hitting two, while Pepper Martin and Jim Bottomley smacked one apiece. Watkins' first home broke Fitzsimmons' scoreless string of 23 consecutive innings.

Brooklyn, May 17 (A.P.).—Cincinnati evened its series with the Robins today by winning the second game 7 to 5. In the first inning, the Reds batted Luque out of the box under a five-run barrage and established a lead they never relinquished.

After six scoreless innings, Rixey weakened and permitted a run in the seventh. In the eighth he was driven out under a four run assault.

Dizzy Dean Wins Ball Game But Loses Fight at Huston

DALLAS, Tex., May 17 (A.P.).—Dizzy Dean, eccentric and youthful pitcher who was banished to Houston by the St. Louis Cardinals, won a nicely pitched ball game here today, but lost a popular boxing decision to Alfred Todd, husky Dallas catcher.

Dean held the Dallas team, of the Texas League, to five hits, enabling Houston, a Cardinal farm, to break a losing streak and win, 7 to 1.

Words between Dean and Todd started early in the game when the latter charged the Houston hurler with "dusting" him off at the plate.

Coming to bat in the ninth Todd took exception to two balls which forced him to duck, dropped his bat and strode to the pitcher's mound. Todd landed three blows, one on the arm, one on the mouth and one on the eye before players and police pulled the two apart.

Both were permitted to remain in the game.

Derby Result Consoling to Kentucky

Twenty Grand, Sweep All, Mate Foaled in Blue Grass.

Greentree Ace May Set Many Records; Belmont Next Test.

By C. ROBERT KAY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 17 (A.P.).—The East ran away with the big prize in the 1931 Kentucky Derby, but the West today found plenty of consolation in the result of the historic race run in record-breaking time by Twenty Grand, star of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable.

First was the game second run by Charles T. Fisher's Sweep All, a Western-owned colt which handsomely rewarded his followers who backed him for the place position. Second was the victory of Jockey Charley Kurtsinger, a Louisville boy who grew up in the shadow of Churchill Downs' fences and had the mount on the winner.

And last, there never was a Kentucky Derby result to which natives of central Kentucky could not point with pride, and this Derby was no exception. Twenty Grand, Sweep All and A. C. Bostwick's Mate, third in the Derby, all were bred in the blue grass region.

Twenty Grand Foaled Near Lexington.

Twenty Grand was foaled and trained as a yearling on Mrs. Whitney's Greentree farm near Lexington, where his dam, Bonus, is quartered. Any day now, stable attaches say, Twenty Grand will have a new half-brother or half-sister, so Bonus was not particularly excited when her handlers notified her yesterday she was the mother of a Derby winner. On the adjoining farm of C. V. Whitney is his sire, the imported St. Germans, which was a disappointment as a stallion until Twenty Grand came along to burn up the tracks.

Sweep All was bred at Fisher's Dixiana farm near Lexington, and Mate is a son of Prince Pal, sire at Thomas Piatt's Brookdale farm. Knebelkamp and Morris' Spanish Play, fourth in the Derby, is Western-owned but was bred in old Virginia.

Twenty Grand's smashing victory, in which he set a new Derby and track record of 2:01 4-5 for the mile and a quarter, sent turf writers digging into their record books today. They discovered he was the first odds-on Derby favorite since the gelding Old Rosebud hung up the former record of 2:03 2-5 in 1914. They also found that his third dam was Regret, the only filly to win the Derby. Bonus was out of Remembrance and Remembrance was out of Regret.

Set World Mark for 2-Year-Olds.

Last year Twenty Grand set a new track record of 1:36 for the mile in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes at Churchill Downs. The next day it was discovered this was a world mile record for 2-year-olds. This year, though, Twenty Grand will have to content himself with the Derby and track records.

Sarazen holds the world 3-year-old record for the mile and a quarter, 2:00 4-5 set at Latonia in 1924. Twenty Grand's mark is not a weight-for-age record either. Man o' War as a 3-year-old in 1920 ran the distance in Twenty Grand's identical

RECORD ENTRY OF 416 COMPETES AT INDIAN SPRING

Tourney Play Draws Best Golfers

King Is Sweepstakes Winner at Woodmont Club.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

WITH an unprecedented list of entries, totaling 416, the Indian Spring Club invitation golf tournament will begin tomorrow morning with half the field divided into a qualifying round of eighteen holes for tomorrow and Wednesday. The last invitation tournament of the Indian Spring Club was in 1929, when the entry list aggregated 282, while in the same year the Columbia reached what was then an unexampled list of 394.

In order to give all the entrants an opportunity to compete, the golf committee of the club has scheduled threesomes instead of twosomes, a change sanctioned by the United States Golf Association. Even this arrangement crowds the competitors into a steady procession from 8 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock on the first day and until 2:20 o'clock on Wednesday. It is evident, therefore, that all the players will have to move swiftly over the course and that when delays are caused by a lost ball or for other reasons, the players in the rear must be allowed opportunity to proceed.

Principal Golfers Listed.

The list of over 400 entries includes all the principal golfers in the District, with James G. Drain and Walter R. McCallum, winner and runner-up of the Washington invitation tournament, and James D. Herrman and B. H. Burrows, winner and runner-up of the Chevy Chase event last week, among the contestants. J. Monro Hunter, jr., medalist at Woodmont; Thomas P. Bones, jr., medalist at Chevy Chase, and Everett Eynon, George F. Miller, L. T. Harrison, Leroy D. Sasscer, champions of the Columbia, Manor, Argyle and Indian Spring, respectively, are also in the list. Thomas W. Sasscer, former Maryland champion, is also entered, and Frank K. Roesch, District amateur champion and Washington Club champion, is also assigned playing time. In this classy field it would take a prophet to predict the winner.

The sweepstakes winners at the Woodmont Club yesterday were as follows: Class A—Harry King, 92—23—69; Walter Nordlinger, 92—22—70; Howard Nordlinger, 79—7—72. Class B—L. E. Harris, 90—26—64; Dr. Charles Basechef, 110—45—65; M. C. Shapiro, 99—30—69. The mixed Scotch foursome event was won by Mrs. Jerome Meyer and L. V. Freudberg, 204—32—172, with a tie for second between Miss Bertha Israel and Dr. S. D. Gottlieb, 204—30—174, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shuiman, 222—48—174.

Washington Four-ball Competition.

The four-ball best ball competition at the Washington Golf and Country Club was won by B. L. Fuller, E. Stafford, L. C. Collins and J. Hawfield, 75—20—55, with Dr. B. S. Taylor, Ward D. McCarthy, D. R. Dougherty and J. L. Baldwin winning second prize with 72—16—56.

In the blind bogey tournament at the Bannockburn Club the lucky number was 69. C. J. Sims, with 98—30—68, and John Goggins, 97—29—68, tied for first prize, with W. Fred Byrne, 86—15—71, winning second.

Seventy-four members of the Beaver Dam Club participated yesterday in a kickers' handicap, 18 holes medal play, handicap. There were three lucky numbers, 76, 80 and 73. For the first prize there was a quintuple tie, as follows: Leonard Nelson, 93—17—76; A. Widener, 104—28—76; Frank Gerardi, 93—17—76; Fred Stringer, 90—14—76, and R. Ecker, 99—23—76. For the second number there was a sextuple tie as follows: G. C. Bain, 105—25—80; Dr. Eberhard, 98—18—80; M. Waxman, 110—30—80; Charles Beall, 108—28—80; F. M. Shore, 105—25—80, and Dr. L. T. Hopkins, 89—9—80. For the third number O. Swecker, 91—18—73, and Terry Coleman, 85—12—73, were in a tie.

TAUSCHER RELEASED BY NATS ON OPTION

Under the circumstances, it does not look as though the Nat owner is using good judgment in handicapping a pennant contending club in the American League to bolster a tail-end "farm" in the minors.

In view of the moving up of tomorrow's scheduled game and making it part of today's double-header, the Nationals will move over to Chicago a day earlier and spend the off day there tomorrow. Johnson plans the old-timer, "Sad Sam" Jones, against the Chisox in the Windy City opener Tuesday.

Midsummer Weather on Hand.

For the first time this season at any of the games in which the Nats have played, coats were discarded and handkerchiefs were frequently used mopping off perspired brows. Midsummer weather prevailed, it being actually hot on the ball field and in the uncovered pavilions.

Buddy Myer could have played today as far as fielding was concerned but his injured left wrist handicapped him in swinging a bat. Great improvement also was noted in First Baseman Joe Kuhel's knee, but Johnson decided not to take any chances on injuring it again at a cost of possibly weeks in an effort to gain a couples of games' service. Both are sure to be in the starting line-up in the opener in Chicago Tuesday.

FIRST GAME.

Goslin raced all the way to the stands in short left to make a nice grab of Hayes' foul, ending the third session.

In the St. Louis third, Crowder fanned Gray and Levey, first two up, and then became so excited that he walked Burns, granted Goslin a homer and then Kress walked before he could get the third man out.

Manush was credited with the Nats' first two hits, both extra bases. His double to left was wasted in the opener but he saw to it that his next blow helped by poling one to the top of the right field stands for his first 1931 homer in the fourth.

Goslin Takes Nap On Base Path.

Goslin surely failed to use his head in the seventh. With him on first and Levey on second, the latter stole third and the Goose calmly remained on first and watched the theft. The steal, by the way, gave the Browns their sixth run for it put Levey in position to count after the catch of Kress' long fly.

SECOND GAME

Goslin misjudged Hayes' "power" opening the game and started in for "Sonny Boy's" drive only to see it sail over his head. The blow went as a double.

Kress must have had a brainstorm after singling opening round 2, for he ran with his head down on Melillo's pop foul and was an easy double play victim.

Melillo made a back handed stab behind second to rob Brown of a hit in the third.

Blaeholder fanned the side in the Nat's fifth. After West singled he struck out Bluege and Jordan. On Bluege's third strike, West stole second and went on to third on Farrell's peg to center. Later Hargrave walked and stole but both were left when Brown took a third strike.

Hargrave Gets 2 Passes to First.

Hargrave coaxed two walks from Blaeholder, the only ones issued by him in the first seven rounds. The second one was given most willingly, the Redhead being intentionally passed with two dead and West on second so as to bring Brown to the tee. The Nat pitcher then lofted to Goslin to end the frame.

COCHET OUT OF FRENCH DOUBLES

Lott, Van Ryn Heavily Favored in Hard Court Play.

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, Auteuil, France, May 17 (A.P.).—George Lott and John Van Ryn were installed as heavy favorites to win the French hard court tennis doubles championship today when it was announced the French ace, Henri Cochet, would not be able to compete.

Cochet, who with his partner, Jacques Brugnon, forms one of the most formidable doubles teams in the world, is suffering from a severe attack of grip contracted while on a continental tour. At his home at Lyons, it was said Cochet was running a high fever but hoped to be able to compete in the singles at Auteuil which will not start for another week.

Under the rules, replacement or substitution of another team is forbidden, so the chief opposition for Van Ryn and Lott probably will come from Jean Borotra and Christian Boussus.

Rain Interferes With Series.

A heavy rain today forced postponement of the final day's play in the French-English team series as well as the start of doubles play in the French championships. Tomorrow the team series will be concluded with Lott and Van Ryn, competing for France, playing the English team of H. W. Austin and Charles H. Kingsley.

As soon as the team matches have been finished, play in the championships will begin. Elizabeth Ryan, competing in mixed doubles with Borotra, will be the only American playing in the first round.

TWENTY GRAND FACES BELMONT TEST NEXT

time, 2:01 4-5, at Saratoga carrying 129 pounds. Derby weight is 126. The all-age record is held by Whiskbroom II, 2:00 flat, set in 1913 at Belmont Park when he was a 6-year-old and carried 139 pounds.

But other tracks are faster than the Churchhill Downs oval, and Twenty Grand has plenty of racing ahead of him in which to knock at these records. His next big engagement will be the Belmont Stakes in June. Should the Derby winner ever conquer his habit of starting slowly, no telling what might happen to the records.

Equipoise Ahead In Earnings.

Twenty Grand's victory in the Derby, which netted $48,725, sent his winnings up to $105,305. It was his third start of the year. He won the Wood Memorial and was second to Mate in the Preakness. Twenty Grand won four races as a 2-year-old.

His winnings so far do not equal those of Equipoise, which was scratched from the Derby when a blind quarter crack was discovered in one of his hoofs. The C. V. Whitney star, which won $156,835 as a 2-year-old, will be out of racing until August, but his handlers confidently expect he will stage a comeback this fall that will seriously threaten Twenty Grand's present eminence as a 3-year-old.

No story of 1931 Derby day would be complete without mention of the new world record set by Gallant Knight for six and a half furlongs. Gallant Knight, second to Gallant Fox in last year's Derby, stepped into fame in the race just preceding the Derby yesterday. He ran the distance in 1 minute 16 1-5, shearing a full four fifths of a second from the record set by Boojum at Saratoga in 1929.

3,500 SEE OLMSTEDS WIN IN SENIOR CLASS OPENER

O'Brien Nine Defeated by 8-5 Score

Linworths, Lionels, Also Win in Section A Games.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

WITH Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer tossing out the first ball, while Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, and Capital City League officials looked on, the C. A. O'Briens and Olmsted Grill nines officially opened the 1931 pennant race of the senior section of the league before a colorful and enthusiastic gathering of approximately 3,500 fans on the North Ellipse yesterday.

The Olmsted aggregation won the decision in a game marked by both good and bad baseball. The final score was 8—5.

In the other league contests in section A, the Linworth A. C. downed the Koontz Service Station, 10—5, while the Lionels were pounding out a 17—1 victory over the Divies. In section B, the Franc Jewelers routed the Chevy Chase nine, 23—0, the Miller-Roamers won an easy verdict over the Mount Rainier A. C., 16—5, while the Sterling A. C. was taking the measure of the De Molay outfit 10—5.

The O'Brien-Olmsted battle saw both clubs fighting every inch of the way. The presence of the commissioner and the other notable guests, was manifest in the ragged play of both teams for the first two innings. After that the boys felt more at home, and with memories of last season's memorable struggle for the championship fresh in their minds, they fought tooth and nail for every advantage.

Franke's home-run with the bases loaded in the fifth inning sent the O'Briens out in front with three runs to spare, but Sorrell's triple in the seventh, staarted the Olmsted crew on a six run rally which gave them the victory. Frank Carter allowed the winners only six hits, but these, coupled with untimely errors, proved enough for the winners. "Bud" Thomas hurled great ball for the Grillmen, granting eight well scattered blows, and retiring thirteen opponents via the strike-out route. Franke also contributed a great running catch in deep-center as his portion of an interesting game, while Archie Ware showed well in this respect for the victors.

The Linworths were forced to come from behind to triumph over the Koontz nine. The southwest aggregation accomplished this with a rally that tied the score at four all in the seventh, and then went on to win with four additional markers in the eighth. Steve Thompson shone for the McCrea coached nine, while Bradley was best for the losers.

The Lionels enjoyed a good workout at the expense of the Dixies, as the final score, 1 to 1, indicates. Panella and Kearney allowed the losers only five hits between them. Quoil and Stump failed to puzzle the Lionels with their offerings, allowing sixteen hits. Tabler collected four out of five to aid in the slaughter.

Another runaway game resulted in the Franc Jewelers' meeting with the Chevy Chase nine, the former taking the veridct by a 23-to-0 margin. Beans, Franc hurler, allowed only one hit and fanned eighteen opposing batters. W. Albert, with a triple, home run and two singles, led the winners at bat.

Reigelman's stickwork featured the Miller-Roamers victory over the Mount Rainier team on the latter's field. This husky drove out four hits in five appearances at the plate. Hayden shone for the losers.

The Sterling Club bunched its hits at crucial stages of the game to win from the De Molay nine, 10 to 5. Shriver, with four hits in five tries, including a home run, starred for the Sterlings. Hodgen, with four out of four, displayed the best batting eye among the De Molay crew.

BURROUGHS MIDGETS WIN.

The Burroughs Midgets stopped the Times-Herald Midgets on the home diamond yesterday, winning by a score of 4 to 3. Mathias, Burroughs pitcher, fanned sixteen of his opponents, and not until the ninth inning when the Times nine did all of its scoring, were the losers able to obtain a hit off his delivery.

ALEXANDRIANS BEATEN.

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., May 17—The Front Royal All-Stars defeated the Columbia Hose Company No. 9 team of Alexandria, Va., here this afternoon to the score of 8-1. Borden pitched a fine game for the All-Stars allowing only 4 scattered hits while 14 hits were gathered off Bradley pitching for the visitors; he was relieved in the seventh inning by Snellings.

The All-Stars continued their heavy hitting, the main feature of the game was the home runs by Borden and Armstrong. The visitors made their only run in the ninth. A large crowd attended the game.

Washington Lacrosse Team Makes Debut Here Saturday

Hopkins-Olympics, of Baltimore, to Oppose Capital Stickmen, Who Number Many Former College Stars in Line-Up.

NEXT Saturday at American League Park, Washington's sport loving public will be served a seldom-offered dish of lacrosse when the Hopkins-Olympics of Baltimore clash—with the newly organized Washington Lacrosse Association team in a game to decide intercity supremacy.

Though many local fans have been attending the lacrosse games at College Park, home of Maryland University, nearby, they have not had the opportunity of witnessing an exhibition of the ancient Indian sport in their own backyard since last year when the Oxford-Cambridge team met St. John's of Annapolis.

The Washington Association team is the first lacrosse team truly representative of the Capital. It is composed of former college stars, many of whom learned their stick-wielding at Maryland University. The coaches are Reginald Truitt, former head coach of Maryland, and Dutch Axt, former assistant coach of Maryland.

According to supporters of the local twelve, a fast, hard-driving attack has been built around Rosen, New York University; Holloway and Beck, Maryland—all-American men; Kaufholz, Hopkins; Grad, New York University, and Crossthwaite, M. Dix, Snyder, Cory, Krenz and Henry, all former Maryland stars.

On defense a strong wall around the goal has been formed by Madigan, Loan, Zalesak, Compton and J. Dix, formerly of Maryland; Sharpe, Brown University; Miller, Hopkins; Shanks, Penn State, and Woods, Navy.

The Hopkins-Olympics are composed of all-American stickmen who won the Olympic championship at Amsterdam, together with a group of recently graduated stars of Johns Hopkins.

The present Washington twelve will be whipped into shape for the 1932 Olympic tryouts, and if the venture is successful the Capital will witness many more games, according to those directly interested in the club.

Tickets for Saturday's games are on sale at the box office at American League Park and Spalding's, 1338 G street northwest.

A practice will be held for the local team today on the Sixteenth street reservoir grounds, beginning at 5 p. m.

Skinker Eagles Beat Howitzer Giants, 8-4

Scoring five runs in the fifth inning, the Skinker Bros. Eagles defeated the strong Howitzer Giants on the former's diamond yesterday by a score of 8-4. Frances, with three hits in four trips to the plate, led the Eagles' attack, while "Huck" Hilleary was not far behind with two out of three. Lefty Stevens granted the losers only six hits and fanned eight. Tribby, with two hits in three attempts, was best for the losers.

Berkeley Bell Beaten In New York Upset

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—Jerry Lang, former Columbia captian, upset the highly favored Berkley Bell of Dallas, Texas, in the final round of the North Side tennis singles championship today after three hours of gruelling play. The scores were 4—6, 6—3, 7—9, 6—2, 6—3.

Lang played a steady back court game all the way forcing Bell into errors that cost the Texan important games.

FORT WASHINGTON LEAGUE

Company I won an interesting 5-3 contest from Company K in a Fort Washington Soldier Post league baseball game on the Fort Washington grounds.

The game was the start of the second half series. Company I won the first half, ended last week, by playing excellent ball. Weaver got his team off to another good start yesterday when he hurled creditably, allowing six hits and fanning 13.

SIBERIAN AND SHIKAT TO BATTLE

Match Features Show for Unemployed at Ball Park.

LOCAL wrestle fans will feast their eyes Thursday night at Griffith Stadium on one of those old-time grudge matches, when Dick Shikat, formerly recognized as world's champion, meets Sergie Kalmikoff, the bearded strong man from Siberia, in the feature bout of the job fund benefit show.

Shikat, exponent of the modern-day type of wrestling, and Kalmikoff, who relies on his brute strength to crush an opponent on the mat, have clashed twice before, with each winning a decision. Promoter Joe Turner originally had planned to pit Wladek Zbyszko against Shikat, but switched to Kalmikoff when he learned of the previous battles between the American and the Siberian.

McMillen and Dusek Will Clash.

The supporting feature will bring together Jim McMillen and Rudy Dusek, both comparative youngsters who like their wrestling rough, while the rest of the card calls for bouts between Pinkey Gardner and Steve Beamis (for the light-heavyweight championship); Tiny Roebuck and Jim Clinstock, a pair of giant Indians; Billy Bartush and Floyd Marshall, and Wilson and Tiger Nelson.

The gate receipts, excepting $5,000 which will go for the wrestlers' services, will be turned over to the committee on unemployment of the District.

Maryland U. Honors Athletes Next Tuesday

The annual athletic banquet of Maryland University will be held next Tuesday night in the university dining hall, it was announced last night. Details of the program have not yet been completed. The purpose of the affair is to bestow letter awards on members of various Maryland varsity athletic teams.

MARLBORO WINS.

With Talbott hurling air-tight ball, the Marlboro A. C. defeated the Indian Head nine by a score of 9 to 5 in a well played game on the former's diamond yesterday. Talbott granted only nine well scattered blows, and fanned seven of the opposing batters. Suit with three hits in four attempts led the winners at bat, while Sprague with three out of five was best for the losers.

PASTOR DECLARES PRAYER IS UNABLE TO WORK MIRACLES

Wonderful Things, However, Have Come From Pleas, Affirms Minister.

LUTHERAN CLERIC CITES APPEALS' LIMITATIONS

Final Outcome in Hands of God, Says Rev. J. F. Wenchel in Sermon.

Prayer has its limitations, it works no miracles, "but wonderful things come in response to prayer," declared the Rev. J. Frederic Wenchel, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, Sixteenth and Gallatin streets northwest, in his sermon yesterday morning.

His sermon follows in part:

"'The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.' The epistle of James is concerned with the practical application of the truths of Christianity to the problems of life. It does not deal with deep mysteries and great doctrinal truths. In our text, James 5:16, he speaks of prayer. He that it availeth much. He uses in the next verse the example of Elijah as an encouragement to believe in prayer. In the preceding verse he gives direction to pray for the sick.

"There is no doubt about the efficacy of prayer. I have seen wonderful things come to pass in answer to prayer, unexpected results, yet I have never seen any miracles in the sense of direct intervention of God and the contravention of the laws of nature. Some unexpected change occurred which transformed the whole situation, some mysterious element entered which produced an entirely different result. Little occurrences often produce great results and unexpected incidents shape mighty issues. This is a lesson of history as well as a common experience of life. Divine providences enter into our lives more than we realize.

Outcome in God's Hands.

"Prayer never sets aside our own individual efforts and the use of every earthly means in our power. Honesty and common sense require that. Yet the final outcome is in the fulfillment of his will and our prayers. The scientifically trained man can accomplish things which to the ignorant man are unbelievable, so God in his infinite wisdom and almighty power can do, in the words of Paul, 'above all that we can ask or even think,' without overturning the ordinary laws of nature.

"The apostle in our text is careful to emphasize the fact that it is the prayer of a righteous man that availeth much, not of every man. In prayer the relationship of man to God is all-important. Can an outlaw ask for a favor of the Government, to be fed and clothed? Many people are encouraged to pray who ought first be called upon to repent. Prayer is the high and holy privilege of those who through faith in Christ have become God's children and are living in fellowship with God and doing his will. They will not be so much concerned about material and earthly things as about spiritual and heavenly things; not that theirs, but God's, will be done, for that is the higher and holier thing. A man's prayer is the revelation of the things he lives for. Many prayers are a mockery and are the evidence of a selfish and worldly man.

Has Its Limitations.

"Our text also makes it clear that prayer has its limitations. While it availeth much, it will not affect everything, as is often claimed. Moses, though he prayed fervently that he be permitted to enter Canaan, never did. Paul never had his thorn in the flesh removed. Some one once made the statement in my Sunday school in the interest of the leper mission that the reason we could not heal the lepers as the apostles did is because we lacked their faith. This is not true. I have met Christian men and women whose faith was just as fervent as that of the prophets and apostles. They had a divine commission and a divine endowment which we have not received.

"There is an effectiveness to the fervent, honest-to-goodness prayer of a righteous man which a Christian experiences, and no amount of scientific arguments can rob them of. We are not thinking of the influence of communing with God in prayer on a man's heart and mind, which is important. We are thinking of objective results, changes in things, in events, providential occurrences. Have faith in prayer.

"'More things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of. Wherefore,
Let thy voice rise like a fountain for me night and day.
For what are men better than sheep or goats
That nourish a blind life within the brain,
If knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer
Both for themselves and those who call them friends?'"

Workmen Are Guests At House They Built

Men who had a part in the construction and furnishing of the unusual new home of Charles Mason Remey, architect, author and lecturer, at 2440 Massachusetts avenue north west, had an opportunity to view the results of their handiwork yesterday afternoon when they were invited to visit the residence with their families and friends.

The home, to give it the general term applied by Mr. Remey, is in the Mediterranean style. The exterior is of white brick and is almost ascetic in its unpretentiousness and restraint. The interior contains an electric organ, a beautiful little chapel, European tapestries, paintings, silverware and furniture.

"Angel of Poor" Plans Party.

Anna Sianner, self-styled "Angel of the Poor" and a familiar figure in Washington at intervals during the last ten years, arrived here yesterday from social service work in New York and announced a lawn party for Saturday on the Monument Grounds. She announced that a skit from the Gayety Theater will headline the entertainment.

FIRST WEDDING IN NEW CHAPEL

The first religious ceremony to be performed in the new Walter Reed Hospital Chapel was a wedding held last night uniting Roy H. Taylor and Helen Catherine Bangert, both of Clarendon, Va., with Capt. R. Earl Boyd, post chaplain officiating. Left to right: Mrs. G. A. Jolley, bride's attendant; the bride, formerly Helen C. Bangert; Capt. Boyd, chaplain; the bridegroom, Roy H. Taylor, and William J. Connors, best man.

LINCOLN AND GRANT HONORED AT CAPITOL

Many Groups Represented as Annual Memorial Service Is Held.

Members of more than fifteen patriotic organizations attended the annual joint memorial service of the Lincoln and Grant circles yesterday afternoon in the rotunda of the National Capitol.

The ceremony was featured by the massing of colors of the various organizations. The principal address was made by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d. Paying a tribute to Abraham Lincoln and to Gen. Grant, Col. Grant showed how friendship between the two developed during the Civil War.

He made the observation that though the two had not been friends since childhood, their friendship became just as firm as if it had been a lifelong one because of the circumstances which brought them together.

The ceremony was opened with a trumpet assembly call by C. L. Fowler, of the U. S. Trumpeteers. An address of welcome was made by Miss Margaret Moore, president of the Grant Circle, following an organ prelude by William Sothard. A solo was rendered by Miss Dorothy Simnott. A floral procession, massing of the colors and playing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" concluded the exercises. The Rev. W. A. Bugbee offered the benediction. The Rev. Allen A. Stockdale pronounced the invocation.

Virginia Negro School Entertains Governor

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., May 17.—The eighth annual sacred concert for governors of Virginia by students of the Virginia State College for Negroes was given this afternoon at the college building for Gov. John Garland Pollard, who was present and made an address.

Harry T. Burleigh, barytone soloist in a New York church, was the artist. At the close of the concert an address was made by J. M. Ganby, president of the college.

Delegates Attend Pohick Services

Mount Vernon Association Members Worship in Old Church.

Communion services yesterday morning of the Pohick Episcopal Church, the home church of George Washington, on the Washington-Richmond highway about 15 miles south of Alexandria, Va., were attended by members of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association, led by their regent, Mrs. Alice Edwards, of Maine. The association is holding its annual ten-day session in the mansion of the Mount Vernon estate.

Dedicatory services also were held of the Rathbone organ, on which a plate recently was placed by members of the church. The organ was presented in memory of Miss Elizabeth Rathbone, of Michigan, vice regent of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association from 1885 to 1919. The organ fund was initiated by Mrs. Benjamin Warren, successor to Miss Rathbone, to which contributions were made by friends of Miss Rathbone and members of Pohick Church.

Special organ music was rendered yesterday morning during the services, which were conducted by the Rev. C. A. Langston, rector of the church.

PORTRAIT EXHIBIT PLANNED IN 1932

Bicentennial Group Seeks Washington's Originals From Over Sea.

A pretentious exhibition of original portraits of George Washington, miniatures of George and Martha Washington, together with silver, jewelry and other mementoes of the family, is planned as a feature of the Bicentennial celebration here next year.

Mrs. Rose Gouveneur Hoes, acting for the Bicentennial Commission, announced yesterday that she has received a willing response from many of the owners among persons known to hold approximately 100 original portraits of Washington. The paintings are to be loaned to the commission solely for the exhibit to be held at the National Museum.

Members of the Diplomatic Corps have volunteered the loan of several little-known Washington portraits. Among those which the commission hopes to exhibit is a portrait of Washington hanging in the Museum of Stockholm, Sweden, the Gilbert Stuart portrait owned by the Boston Athenaem, and the Washington portrait in the collection of former Senator Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey.

Mrs. Hoes is assisted by a committee including Mrs. McCook Knox, Dr. Alexander Wilbourne Weddell, of Richmond, and F. Lamont Belin and George B. McClellan, of Washington.

Marylander Opens Drive for Zionism

Frederick Attorney Talks at Southern Gathering for Movement.

Charleston, S. C., May 17 (A.P.).—An appeal for the re-establishment of Jerusalem as the national capital of the Jewish race was made here tonight by Leo Weinberg, Frederick, Md., attorney, in an address which marked the opening of the Zionist campaign in the South.

"Palistine, to thousands of Jews, especially in Eastern Europe and the Orient, is their only hope, as they struggle amid persecution and suffering," said Mr. Weinberg, speaking at the Jewish Community Center. "The re-establishment of Jerusalem is an immortal adventure, to the success of which the Jews of America especially are lending every effort.

"The American Jews has the obligation to maintain and preserve the ideals of America in the present crisis of the race. Because of his advantageous social and economic position the obligation upon him is heaviest in the effort to prepare the land of their ancestors for the return of his wandernig kinsman.

Soroptimists to Form Chapter in Baltimore

Mrs. Ruby Lee Minar, immediate past president of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs; Mrs. Mary Lewis, treasurer; Mrs. Nell Hysong and Mrs. Betsy Fisher, regional representatives, as well as other members of the Washington Soroptimist Club, will motor to Baltimore Saturday to form a Soroptimist Club among business and professional women of that city.

The meeting will take place at the Lord Baltimore Hotel where a luncheon will be served at 1:15 p. m. Mrs. Gertrude Gallagher is the prime mover in formation of the Baltimore Club.

Boy Scout Excursion List to Number 1,000

One thousand Boy Scouts, their fathers and scout leaders are expected to participate in their all-day fifth annual excursion May 30 to Camp Roosevelt, at Calvert Cliffs on Chesapeake Bay.

The party will leave Washington by special train at 8:30 o'clock that morning, disembarking about four miles from the camp and hiking there. An extensive program includes various demonstrations in scoutcraft, watercraft and entertainment activities.

House Breaker Gets $15.

Mrs. Ruth A. Shoemaker, 5310 Belt road northwest, yesterday reported to police that some one entered her home by breaking a front window while she and members of her family were away, and a billfold containing $15 was missing from a table in the living room. The billfold was valued at $5, she said.

$15 Holdup Is Reported.

Phillip Nalley, of 531 Ninth street southeast, yesterday reported to police that while walking through an alley near his home Saturday night, he was approached by a colored man who robbed him of $5 in cash and a watch valued at $10.

'BIG TOP' PREPARED FOR OPENING TODAY

Four Long Trains Containing Performers and Features Witnessed by Many.

Late yesterday four long trains of 100 double-length steel circus cars, each bearing the mightiest title in the entire amusement world—Ringling Bros. & Barnum & Bailey, Greatest Show on Earth—steamed into the city for afternoon and night performances today and tomorrow at Fifth street and Florida avenue, and before dusk the vast canvas city that houses the big show was raised.

On board the trains were 1,600 people, 43 elephants, the wild creatures of the world's largest traveling zoo, 800 internationally acclaimed spangleland performers, 700 horses and Goliath, the 9-ton sea elephant. Among the imported features on the fourth train was the Orland-Mara sensation, a spectacular and breath-taking display in which Orland, with pretty Miss Mara on his back, dives from the dome of the tent to land upon his chest far below on a toboggan chute. Also on this train were the famous Reinsch Brothers' riding act from Sweden, with an amazing and exciting repertoire new to America, rivaling the Austrian Rieffenach family, now with the show.

Crowds Gather Early.

Crowds gathered early at the lot and railroad sidings yesterday afternoon, for boys of all ages, and girls, too, were determined to be on hand to see the big show unload. They were there, and they were there in force. They came, they saw, they marveled and, marveling, they followed the horses and the wagons, the elephants and the cages, the zebras, camels and the pageantry cars to the show grounds, where, almost before one could turn around, horse tents were raised and the little city that is Ollie Webb's commissary and dining department was up and about its swift business of feeding the nomad army of Ringling-Barnum troupers.

On rolled the great wagons, with six and eight horse teams straining as they diverged over the grounds, Fan-like they deployed, unloaded and were merged in the glamorous scene of towering poles and billowing canvas until, as though by word of command, acres of canvas bulged and tautened, and the big top, seating 16,000 persons; the menagerie, the sideshow tops, the padroom and dressing tents, the auxiliary tents, all were sharply defined against the skyline in massive silhouettes, and hundreds of men were swinging sidewalls and connections into place. The biggest thing that moves, the "greatest show on earth," was up and ready except for interior activities for performances at 2 and 8 p. m., today and tomorrow.

Great List of Stars.

Other preeminent features are: Hugo Zacchini, the human projectile, who is shot headlong from the massive muzzle of a siege gun across the vast stretches of the big top; Con Colleano, the king of all stellar wire artists and the only human ever to do forward somersaults on the taut steel thread; the Wallendas, two troupes of daredevils who thrill with their dangerous acrobatics on 100-foot wires in the peak of the great tent without nets; Luicita Leers, Europe's darling of aerial gymnastics; the Flying Codonas, with Alfredo, the only man accomplishing a triple somersault in midair to a hand-to-hand catch; Maximo, comedy genius of the wire; Miss Winnifred, soaring, somersaulting aerial comet; the Piechianis and Yaccopis, springboard, somersaulting acrobats supreme; Al Powell, flying, domehigh trapeze-contortionist; the Rubios, novelty head and hand balancing beauties; George and Mae Clark, amazingly daring lofty trapeze artists; the Rieffenach sisters, the most noted and beautiful bareback riders ever acclaimed on the continent of Europe, and the internationally famous bareback riding families—the Rieflenachs, the Ernestos and the Reinschs, to say nothing of nearly 800 other performers of note and 100 clowns, including Buck Baker, Felix Adler, Herman Josephs, the celebrated Blutch and the outstanding funmakers of every European and South American nation.

Catholic Charities Aids 1,878 Families

Chest Group Gives Reports on Scope of Activities During Past Year.

Major aid was rendered during 1930 to 1,878 families by the Catholic Charities, a member of the Community Chest, acording to announcement made yesterday.

The aid was described as in addition to assistance rendered to Catholice families by parish organizations and also the aid given children through the various departments maintained by the Charities.

"Of the many families under care," the report stated, "the problem in the case of 292 was of a religious nature; 355 cases handled were of broken homes, due to death or desertion; involuntary unemployment, 406; insufficient income, 498; serious indebtedness, 248; domestic difficulties, 109; adult delinquency, 65."

WORLD-WIDE PHONE RELAY TO BE TODAY

Committee Room at Capitol Will Be Terminus for Good-Will Calls.

World Goodwill Day will be celebrated today by the World Federation of Education Associations, in cooperation with the National Council for Prevention of War, with a novel program of country-wide and international telephone conversations by students in the exchange of goodwill messages.

Washington and London will be focal points in the network program, which will be consummated at 4 o'clock this afternoon when the final call will link the two capitals, after messages have poured into both from various parts of their respective hemispheres.

In addition to having acted as the terminus for a relay message tapping every State, Washington also will have exchanged felicitations with Canada, Mexico and Chile, while London will have received messages from Australia, Belgium, France, Germany, Holland, Hungary, New Zealand, Scotland, Switzerland, Africa, Java and Australia.

The western terminus of the line from Washington to London will be in the Capitol committee rooms of the Senate foreign relations committee, whose chairman, Senator William E. Borah, Idaho, will be host to the guests there.

Robert Hild, 1234 Rhode Island avenue northeast, of Business High School, will convey the regards of all North and South America to the English students, speaking for the various countries whose messages they received.

The opening call in the United States will be placed at 11 o'clock, Eastern standard time, by Clare Ellis, a student, at Stockton, Calif., in a conversation with Kenneth MacLean, in Carson City, Nev. He will resume the relay, which will touch students in every State capitol, finally ending at Hartford, Conn. At 3:42 o'clock this afternoon Helen Wieland, at Hartford, is slated to call Dorcas Cole, 1521 Thirty-fifth street northwest, an Eastern High School student.

Dorothy Burch, 336 Maryland avenue northeast, a student in Notre Dame Academy, will speak to Chile, and Elinore Powers, 822 Emerson street northwest, a student in McFarland Junior High School, will talk with Ottawa, Canada.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

BOY, THE REGENERATOR, PLEASE!

A MACHINE that generates short radio waves which overcome fatigue and stimulate the mind may soon be a boon to busy executives, according to Orestes H. Caldwell, former Federal Radio Commissioner.

* * * *

When the tired business man is excessively tired he will retire into a cabinet, turn on the juice and come popping out after a few moments too fresh for office comfort. He will totter into the cabinet too weary to dictate another letter and gallop out with a million red-hot ideas for undertaking a new sales drive.

* * * *

You can imagine Witherby K. Snibbs, czar of the pie plate industry, crawling toward the regenerator unable to answer another telephone call and stamping forth presently so full of vigor his secretary may have to stun him with a mallet.

* * * *

When this high frequency stimulator is really perfected to its fullest possibilities it may vitalize a business man so thoroughly that he can take a brief treatment after breakfast, do all his business over the 'phone, and spend the rest of the day looking for lost golf balls.

* * * *

"WHEEL in the regenerator," the chief may demand, as he finishes with his boiled eggs and Melba toast. "I've rather a tough day ahead."

"The Model K?" his man will ask.

"No, the big Super-Pet machine," he will reply. "The one that fills me so full of electrical currents I can preside at an executive conference, do all my dictation, read the papers, carry on a telephone conversation and prepare a monthly statement at one and the same time without once calling for aspirin tablets."

"How many volts will you require, sir?"

"Oh, give me the works. As I said before, I'm in for an extremely hard day. I've got two board metings, a wage conference and a bank meeting this morning. In the afternon I've got a big plant inspection trip and tonight the wife has dated me up for a bridge party."

"Just how much electricity do you feel you can stand, sir?"

"That's what bothers me. There's no way of telling when I'm fully charged. I wish you'd write the radio people and see if they haven't some instrument for testing me."

Well, after being filled full of electrons, he will dash from the house, speed to the office and give a stirring imitation of a hound chasing a mechanical rabbit. It will all be very simple.

* * * *

But how about the office help? Will there be some machine to put them in shape to stand the pest?

THE JOE COOK DIVORCE.

"Joe Cook, Comedian, Gets Divorce."—headline.

* * * *

WELL, it was probably done something like this: Mr. Cook clashed the cymbals, the vibration releasing a weight which fell on a board, catapulating a golf ball into a chute. The ball ran through the chute, striking a wire, which upset a can of ashes onto Mr. Cook's attorney.

The attorney sprang to his feet, hitting a cord which discharged a shotgun, the charge from which blew the bottom out of a box containing three witnesses. The witnesses fell onto a bass drum and bounded off against a couple of court stenographers, who turned abrutly and dislodged a bowling ball, which rolled across a table and fell to the floor, springing a trap which automatically pulled the bung from a barrel of water.

The water descended on the judge (Joe Chasen) waking him from a sound sleep and causing him to cry.. "Decree granted." Mr. Cook then walked out of the courtroom a free man.

HAY-ADAMS GROUP TO MEET TONIGHT

Noteholders Will Decide on Plan to Organize New Company.

Holders of first trust notes on the Hay-Adams House, one of the bankrupt Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. properties, will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at the company's offices in an effort to complete formation of a new corporation, to protect themselves from loss.

Walter B. Guy, local attorney, who was empowered Friday night to proceed with plans for incorporation, will submit the proposed charter to noteholders for final approval. The plan provides for issuance of one share of stock for every $100 of first trust notes. At least $300,000 must be subscribed before it may become effective.

A hearing by Justice Adkins of the District Supreme Court, on a petition to foreclose a chattel mortgage on the Hay-Adams furnishings, scheduled for this morning, has been postponed until tomorrow afternoon. Guy is seeking to present an organized front, to forestall forced sale of the furniture, which he declared would put the house out of business. The new corporation must raise in the neighborhood of $150,000 to pay off back taxes, ground rent and notes on the furniture.

Creditors on other Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. projects, will meet with Referee Fred J. Eden at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon to resume examination of Edmund D. Rheem, executive vice president of the company, now under $25,000 bond on a charge of embezzlement of $160,000 and concealing writings.

Flim-Flam Victim Reports $100 Loss

Woman Tells Police She Paid Cash for Half of $1,000 Find.

Martha Holmes, colored, Fourteenth street near T street northwest, is a wiser and sadder woman today. She unfolded a tale of woe to police of the Eighth Precinct early yesterday, and was informed that there wasn't much that could be done about it.

According to her story, she was leaving the United States Savings Bank at Fourteenth and U streets northwest early Saturday, and was approached by a colored man, in company with a woman companion. The couple informed her that they had just found an envelope containing $1,000, and that they would divide the money with her if she would give them $100.

She obligingly reached in her pocketbook and produced the required amount. A date was then made for the three to meet at Eleventh street and Florida avenue northwest at 7 o'clock Saturday night, when the contents of the mysterious envelope would be divided.

At the time set for the appointment, the Holmes woman stood on the designated corner. She stood for perhaps an hour, and when her "friends" failed to appear she became slightly suspicious, and went to the Eighth precinct to find out what she should do next.

Sorority to Give Tea to Graduates

George Washington Group Will Honor Winners of Degrees.

Men and women students of George Washington University who are doing graduate work or who are to receive degrees of Doctor of Philosophy or Master of Arts will be entertained at a tea given in their honor by Phi Delta Gamma, national graduate professional sorority.

This is one of the events in the 110th commencement of George Washington University and plans are being made to make this feature of the week's program one of happy recollection for those who participate.

The tea will be held in the garden of 2024 G street northwest from 4 to 7 p. m., Sunday, June 7, following the baccalaureate sermon. Patronesses, officers and those members of the sorority receiving degrees of Doctor of Philosophy or Master of Arts will form the receiving line. In case of rain the tea will be held in the sorority rooms, fourth floor, 2022 G street.

Thieves Take Lamp From Lobby.

Mrs. Cora B. Moran, resident manager of an apartment house at 1424 Sixteenth street northwest, yesterday reported to police that early yesterday morning some one entered the lobby of the building and removed a reading lamp valued at $50. The front door was unlocked, she said, and no one saw the intruder.

Pool Room Robbery Reported.

Ernest Stevens, proprietor of a pool room at 1903 Fourteenth street northwest, yesterday told police that his establishment was entered Saturday night and several cartons of cigars and cigarettes and a box of billiard balls were stolen. He said the total value of articles was $127. Entrance was gained by breaking a lock on the front door.
